GANGLAND REVENGE SEEN BEHIND DEATH OF RACKET LEADER

Hamilton Police Seek Wounded Man And Gun Users

HAMILTON, O., May 28.—Gangland's unwritten anti-poaching law was enforced here again last night and today Joseph Jacobs, race horse owner and alleged racketeer, was dead and search was underway for a unidentified companion who fled, though believed mortally wounded.

Jacobs and the second man were driving along a road near here when a curtained sedan sped up and forced their coupe to the side of the road. A moment later a rain of machine gun bullets riddled the coupe and Jacobs was killed.

As the sedan sped away Jacobs' companion leaped from the coupe and boarded a machine occupied by Blanche Hoffman and Anna Smith who live near a little school house in front of which the murder took place. The girls carried the man as far as Mount Pleasant Pike where he disappeared.

The killing was the second chalked up by the machine-guns in less than a week. A few days ago George Murphy, former clerk at the Grand Hotel here, was ambushed in an alley and felled in his tracks.

Police attribute the killings to either rival hijacking or blackmailing gangs.

As city and county authorities began a search for the killers they sought to link the gangsters with killings in Newport, Ky., where another gangland murder occurred Sunday.

Jacobs' companion was believed to have been Joseph Zwick, wanted in Cincinnati on a murder charge. The man owned the coupe which bore a license obtained under a fictitious name and address.

Police are convinced that either bootlegging or blackmailing was behind Jacobs' death but they hold to the blackmailing theory as the most plausible.

A blackmailing ring, they said, has been operating in southern Ohio and Covington, Ky. Ring members have been posing as federal agents and "shaking down" known liquor law violators, they said.

Jacobs' wife, the mother of five children, was unable to shed any light on the shooting. Her husband left home as usual last night, she said, and she didn't know he had been slain until a friend called her.

"He went to Cincinnati late yesterday," she said. "He had a race horse and was going to ship it to Canada. We were going to Canada, too."

She was unable to identify Jacobs' companion.

The two girls on whose car the man jumped, said he plead with them to "take me away." They refused and he left the car at the pike.

Officers believe the man was so badly wounded that he could not have gone far, unless he was taken away by friends.

THINK SENATE RULE OF SECRECY TO END

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Modification of the senate's rules, to authorize publication of part or all business now transacted in executive session, may be expected, senate leaders said today, as the inevitable result of the "Mallon case."

The rules committee's action in disciplining Paul R. Mallon, United Press correspondent, for reporting the roll calls on confirmation of two important nominations, and its futile attempt to learn from Mallon the source of his information, has brought the matter of senate secrecy to a head.

The next few days are expected to reveal how far the advocates of complete publicity will succeed in their efforts to bring the senate's transactions into the open.

ANOTHER OHIO BANK IS ORDERED CLOSED

COLUMBUS, O., May 28.—The banking department today closed the State Bank at New Marshall, Athens County, at the request of the institution's directors.

Gradual falling off of business was given as the reason.

On March 27 the bank reported total resources of $84,000, capital of $25,000 and deposits of $55,000.

Major C. W. Miller, state liquidating officer, was placed in charge of the bank.

BUS OWNER SUICIDES
PLAIN CITY, O., May 28.—Ill health was assigned today as the motive for the suicide of Grant E. Herriott, 62, owner of the Columbus-Marysville bus line who shot and killed himself. Herriott formerly lived at New California.

SHOTS HUSBAND
TOLEDO, O., May 28.—Police today were questioning Mrs. Faye Hill, 26, who shot and wounded her husband, Auddie, 28, after an argument. Before shooting the man, according to police, Mrs. Hill told her husband "your worries are about over."

MINORITY OPINION IN SCHWIMMER CASE BRINGS ATTENTION

Justice Holmes Asks Tolerance In Case Of Pacifist

WASHINGTON, May 28.—A terse, characteristically sharp dissenting opinion by Oliver Wendell Holmes, 85-year-old dean of the supreme court, pleading for toleration of those "who believe more in the principles of the sermon on the Mount than some of us do," aroused interest in legal and liberal circles today.

The aged Holmes, with Justices Brandeis and Sanford, dissented from the majority decision denying Rosika Schwimmer, Hungarian pacifist leader of Ford peace ship fame, naturalization as an American citizen. Madame Schwimmer, who is over fifty, told authorities she would refuse to bear arms in defense of her country, and the majority, in a decision read by Justice Butler, held this was potentially dangerous to the nation. They held the citizenship was a privilege and that the alien must prove his qualification for it.

"Surely it cannot show lack of attachment to the principles of the constitution that she thinks it can be improved," Holmes said. "I suppose that most intelligent people think it might be. To touch a more burning question, only a judge mad with partisanship would exclude because the applicant thought the eighteenth amendment should be repealed."

Two other decisions of great legislative importance also were handed down and were hailed as precedents.

One upheld pocket vetoes by the president at the end of first sessions of congress. The other upheld a senate warrant of arrest issued for Thomas W. Cunningham, Philadelphia court clerk who refused to tell the senate where he obtained $50,000 to contribute to William S. Vare's senatorial campaign fund.

The pocket veto decision, handed down in a test case appealed by the Okanogan Indian tribe, kills finally the Norris resolution for continued government operation of Muscle Shoals, the great Alabama power-nitrate plant. Sen. Black, Dem., Ala., immediately introduced two bills to lease the plant to the American Cyanamid Company or the Farmers Fertilizer Corporation.

MAN KILLED WHEN AUTO HITS TRUCK
YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 28.—One man was killed and two others were seriously injured when an automobile ran into a truck, parked without lights, on the Youngstown-Akron road near here last night.

The truck driver was placed under arrest.

Andrew Savel, 26, of Pottersdale, Pa., was killed.

Paul Narehood, 45, of Connersville, Pa., and Frank Hodge, 18, of Pottersdale, Pa., received scalp and body wounds and bruises.

FIREMAN KILLED
VERMILION, O., May 28.—James Cleaver, 27, volunteer fireman, was killed here when a New York Central train struck his car. He was speeding to a fire when the accident occurred.

Assistant Attorney General To Engage Private Practice

WASHINGTON, May 28.—President Hoover today accepted the resignation of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt as assistant attorney general.

The President feels that Mrs. Willebrandt has been an effective official and has shown utmost devotion and great abilities.

She remained after March 4 to complete some special work in the department of justice but has received an excellent offer which the President did not feel justified in asking her to decline.

Coming to Washington during the Harding administration, Mrs. Willebrandt has since figured in a number of political incidents of major importance that has earned for her a name as a fighter.

Her rise from obscurity as a country school teacher to the high post of assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition, tax and federal prison matters, reads like a romance.

For some time, Mrs. Willebrandt, whose arduous campaigning for President Hoover is reported to have affected her health, has been anxious to retire and engage in private law practice. She recently received a handsome offer from a private law firm, it is said.

Mrs. Willebrandt was silent today regarding her future plans.

Surprise was expressed by politicians today at Mrs. Willebrandt's action. It was thought her valiant campaigning for Hoover had assured her a permanent post in this administration.

Mrs. Willebrandt recently advised President Hoover of her plans to enter private law practice and was told the president could conveniently replace her at this time. It was learned authoritatively she is relinquishing her post entirely on her own volition.

LAW ENFORCEMENT COMMISSION NOW PLANNING PROGRAM

Will Limit Inquiry To Giving Effect To All Laws

WASHINGTON, May 28.—President Hoover's national law enforcement commission, which assembled in the cabinet room at the White House today for its first meeting, will not inquire into the merits, or demerits, of prohibition as a national policy but will limit the scope of its inquiry to ways and means of giving effect to laws generally.

"As so many of our members have come such great distance," said George W. Wickersham, chair, man of the commission, "we feel we should accomplish as much as possible at this meeting. We will begin immediately to outline our program."

All eleven members of the commission were in Washington for today's meeting. They were lunch guests of President Hoover at the White House before the scheduled cabinet-room meeting at 2:30 p. m.

"Contrary to what seems to be the general public conception of the task outlined for the commission," said Wickersham in an interview with the United Press, "I see the question of prohibition as merely one aspect of the larger problem of law enforcement. Certainly we shall not start on prohibition. Rather, we shall approach the entire problem of crime, the administration of justice and penal reform, dealing with prohibition only as it presents itself as a particular aspect of the whole problem."

Wickersham would not venture a guess as to how long would be required for the commission's inquiry.

One of the first tasks of the commission will be to collate the findings of the many inquiries which have been conducted throughout the country during the last quarter of a century into criminal procedure and judicial reform.

REQUESTS PAROLE
COLUMBUS, O., May 28.—Robert A. Faber, 42, sentenced to three to twenty years from Dayton on a charge of forgery, has applied to the state board of clemency for parole. Faber served sentences on forgery charges before and was pardoned by former Governors James M. Cox and Vic Donahey.

CONGRESS LEADERS PLEADING FOR HEAT FOR EARLY RECESS

Easing Of Debenture
Deadlock Being Hoped For

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Farmers have been known to pray for rain but congressional leaders are now asking for heat to help them out of the legislative predicament over the farm bill.

If the weather is hot for the next few days the leaders believe house and senate members will be persuaded to ease up the debenture deadlock in order that the administration farm bill can be passed and congress then may recess for the summer.

White House pressure is understood to have been exerted upon house leaders in an effort to get them to yield some points to the senate, and there are high hopes now of a settlement before the end of the week, if it does not get cooler.

The plan now is to have the house agree to work out a bill without the debenture clause. Then the senate conferees will go back to that body and report the inability to agree on the debenture item. The senate will be informed it can have an administration bill without the debenture or no bill at all.

The farm bill is now the main dispute holding up plans for the recess. The tariff bill will be passed by the house today and sent over to the senate tomorrow. It will be referred to the senate finance committee for consideration and if congress recesses until fall, as planned, it will not be taken up by the senate before September.

Radical changes are expected to be made in the bill by the senate committee.

A final vote on the census and reapportionment bill is expected in the senate later today. Polls indicate the bill will pass overwhelmingly.

The rules committee is meeting in executive session to consider five suggested changes, abolishing or modifying the secrecy rule. A report is to be made before next Tuesday and polls show a 55 to 22 majority in favor of open sessions for consideration of nominations.

The investigation into sources which made recent secret roll calls available for publication by the United Press, has been stopped temporarily.

RECOVER NINE BODIES FROM BLAST RUINS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 28.—The bodies of nine dead and two injured miners were removed today from an explosion-wrecked shaft of the Connellville mine of the Volante-Connellville Coal and Coke Company.

A shift of twelve men were trapped in the mine by the explosion. Workmen toiled throughout the night before gaining entrance to the shaft. The two injured men probably will die, physicians said.

Little damage was done to the main shaft which goes to a depth of 1,000 feet.

ANNA GOULD'S SON COMMITTS SUICIDE

PARIS, May 28.—Howard de Talleyrand, son of the Duke and Duchess de Talleyrand, died at a private hospital today from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

The young man shot himself two weeks ago when his mother, the former Anna Gould of New York, refused to let him marry the girl he loved because he was too young. Howard would have been 20 in July.

TENTH INFANTRY SOLDIER DROWNS
CIRCLEVILLE, O., May 28.—Search was continued today for the body of Private Hoyt Draper, Company G, Tenth Infantry, Fort Thomas, Ky., who drowned in the Scioto River here late yesterday while swimming with three companions. Draper was pulled under by a strong current. Draper's company took part in the recent army maneuvers at Columbus and they were marching to Fort Thomas and stopped off here.

GOLDEN FIRE WOOD
ELDERADO SPRINGS, MO., May 28.—For years John Bettis had seen an old log lying in his farm yard. Recently he needed firewood and decided to cut the log into stove lengths. He sawed it open and revealed $250 in gold dust hidden in a can thrust into an auger hole.

THREE PROTESTANT CHURCHES DISCUSS IMPORTANT MERGER

Presbyterians, Methodists
And Episcopalians
May Merge

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 28.—In this modern day of huge business organizations, consolidations and unions, 15,000,000 American church members stand on the threshold of one of the greatest mergers in history.

These millions — Presbyterians, Methodists and Episcopalians — who have made friendly advances for years, have come to that place where the actual joining of their forces is near enough at hand to be almost a reality.

Among the leaders who first proposed unions were the Presbyterians. During the recent years the church maintained a committee especially devoted to conversations with other denominational leaders on the matter of consolidations.

These discussions advanced so rapidly that here in the 141st Presbyterian general assembly nearly 1,000 delegates voted overwhelmingly to take union steps with their "cousin" churches, all branches of the Presbyterian denominations, the Methodists and the Episcopal, at once.

The action came somewhat as a surprise since it was expected that the union moves for the present would be confined largely to the sixteen branches of the Presbyterian church.

When one of the foremost leaders of the assembly was asked what prompted this swift action he replied:

"The alarming present day need for Christian education, the growing disrespect for law, particularly those with regard to liquor."

It generally was agreed that the 2,000,000 Presbyterians now divided among the sixteen branches of the church would be merged in two or three years, five years at the most.

"RINGS ON HER FINGERS"
And Grinding Wheel Needed To Take Them Off;
Lois Tired Of Rings Now

CLEVELAND, O., May 28.—Lois Conomy is only three and her ideas about jewelry are vague, but today she was certain there was one kind of ring she would never wear again. That kind is the kind that comes out of broken tricycles.

Lois, playing in front of her home here last night, slipped two of the "rings," known to mechanically inclined small boys as ballbearing races, over her fingers. One fit snugly over the right forefinger. The other over the left.

But when she was ready to go in the house, the rings wouldn't come off. Her parents couldn't get them off. Cold water applications at Charity Hospital failed to help. Then into the hospital came Detective Gordon Shibley, a former machinist.

"Case-hardened steel," he pronounced as he looked at the rings. "It'll take a tool grinder to cut through them."

Lois was taken to a machine shop here. There Shibley, Paul Molton, machinist, and two Charity Hospital doctors worked an hour and a half, turning the grinding wheel by hand, before they succeeded in cutting the rings.

So carefully did they do their work that the little girl's skin was not broken. But her patience broke and let the tears through, and today she was determined that if she ever again dons a ring, it will come from elsewhere than a broken tricycle.

CRITICISM OF YOUTH SCORED BY COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Cameron Beck of New York Stock Exchange Advises
Sixty Central High Graduates At Seventieth
Annual Exercises Here.

Speaking from the standpoint of a business man, faith in the present generation of youth was expressed by Cameron Beck, personal director of the New York Stock Exchange, who handles 10,000 high school boys a year, in an address at the seventieth annual commencement exercises for the graduating class of Xenia Central High School before a capacity audience at First M. E. Church Monday night.

Mr. Beck, who for ten years has directed the youthful destinies of more boys of high school age than serve any other financial concern in the country, is winding up a barnstorming tour of Ohio and some time ago made a tour of fourteen states during which he talked to 90,000 high school students.

"I came back refreshed in spirit and I am on the way to becoming a confirmed optimist as far as the younger generation is concerned," he said.

While visiting Western high schools, Mr. Beck said he saw some of the finest acts of human service he has ever witnessed in his life.

"Take Hollywood for instance," he explained. "Everyone smiles when you mention Hollywood. But the children of one of the high schools in that city, without any outside help, provided for fifty-two destitute families. They made clothes for the girls, donated wearing apparel for the boys, bought foodstuffs and even made some smaller pieces of furniture with their own hands."

The children of today, Beck asserted, have to face the same problems as were faced by yesterday's youth, but the problems are intensified a thousandfold because of the accelerated rate at which we live. They will be able to deal with their problems, however, he said, if the older generation will stop criticizing and begin to lead away with understanding and a sense of humor, and of things human.

Mr. Beck's own particular province in which he yearly places 1,000 boys in the Stock Exchange as pages and in other junior positions, is described by him as more like a well organized business college than like the employment department of a financial concern.

The boy who aspires to the gray uniform of the Stock Exchange clerk must have a high school diploma for its equivalent.

"Of course our job is to fit these

PLANES STILL HELD UP BY BAD WEATHER

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 28.—Continued unsatisfactory weather conditions in various sections of the North Atlantic kept the French and American monoplane Yellow Bird and Green Flash on the beach here today.

Rene Lefevre and Armande Loti, Jr., navigator and radio operator, respectively, of the Yellow Bird, were still in New York, awaiting a favorable weather report. Jean Assolant, their pilot, was in Old Orchard, overseeing final preparations for the projected flight to Paris.

Pilot Roger Q. Williams and Navigator Lewis A. Yancey of the Green Flash, who hope to make a non-stop flight to Rome, stated there was no possibility of a take-off before tomorrow.

CEREMONY QUIETLY PERFORMED MONDAY AT MORROW ESTATE

Honeymoon Plans Are Kept Secret By Few
Informed

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., May 28.—Out of the millions of persons who discussed the marriage of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Anne S. Morrow there were barely a dozen who could say today whether the flier and his bride were honeymooning at sea, on land or in the air.

And the dozen wouldn't say. It was the same dozen who gathered under the blue larkspur and the columbine in the Morrow drawing room yesterday to see Dr. William Adams Brown, professor of systematic theology in Union Theological Seminary, pronounce an abbreviated form of the Episcopal and Presbyterian marriage ritual.

Outside, Englewood and the rest of the world went on its workaday way in the spring sunshine, unaware that great things were happening up behind the white walls of the big house where the ambassador to Mexico lives when in the United States.

Today you could take your choice of three rumors as to the destination of the couple when they motored casually down the Morrow drive in Lindbergh's sedan after the ceremony, just as they have done any number of times in the last three weeks.

Lindbergh's Blue Falcon plane was fueled and tested at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., and the first report was that he and his bride had hidden somewhere in New York last night and would fly on a honeymoon today.

A yacht was reported to be anchored off the New Jersey coast ready to receive them.

Finally, there were persons who insisted the couple was aboard a train for North Haven, Me., the Morrow summer home.

It was almost two hours after the wedding that the world learned about it. The newspapermen who have been assigned to the Morrow estate since the ambassador's arrival from Mexico on Monday saw nothing unusual in the departure of Lindbergh and Miss Morrow yesterday afternoon.

Lindbergh was at the wheel of his Franklin sedan and he peered straight through the windshield as the car swung by the reporters. The bride smiled and waved at the group as the automobile picked up speed.

"Guess they're off to another tea," said a reporter.

Almost two hours later Charles W. Hulst, Englewood attorney and personal friend of the Morrrows came down the drive and said to Frank Fitzpatrick, policeman on guard at the gate:

"Tell the boys that Colonel Lindbergh and Miss Morrow were married."

SEVEN PLANES OFF IN TROPHY AIR RACE

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 28.—Seven planes took off today in the Gardner trophy air race from Buffalo to Parks Field, St. Louis. At intervals of one minute, the little speedsters, all equipped with Wright-J5 motors, were waved away by Nat E. Duffy, director of the airport and official starter.

Although the flight is expected to be without stops, several fliers indicated they would land at Indianapolis if forced to refuel en route. The air distance is 660 miles to St. Louis. The winner and runner up will get $750 and $250 respectively, and will be eligible to enter the Gardner cup race on Memorial Day, from St. Louis to Indianapolis.

POLICE CHIEF DIES OF BULLET WOUNDS
BERWYN, Ill., May 28.—Chief of Police Charles Levy, 49, died in Berwyn Hospital today of revolver wounds received in an encounter with Chicago gangsters Saturday night.

Levy's assailant was believed to have been Bill Doody, notorious hoodlum and leader of the gang which wounded Postal Inspector William Jackson a few weeks ago.

Levy was shot through the abdomen as he attempted to trap Doody and several of the latter's companions. The police trap was frustrated by a tipster.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Farmers have been known to pray for rain but congressional leaders are now asking for heat to help them out of the legislative predicament over the farm bill.

If the weather is hot for the next few days the leaders believe house and senate members will be persuaded to ease up the debenture deadlock in order that the administration farm bill can be passed and congress then may recess for the summer.

White House pressure is understood to have been exerted upon house leaders in an effort to get them to yield some points to the senate, and there are high hopes now of a settlement before the end of the week, if it does not get cooler.

The plan now is to have the house agree to work out a bill without the debenture clause. Then the senate conferees will go back to that body and report the inability to agree on the debenture item. The senate will be informed it can have an administration bill without the debenture or no bill at all.

The farm bill is now the main dispute holding up plans for the recess. The tariff bill will be passed by the house today and sent over to the senate tomorrow. It will be referred to the senate finance committee for consideration and, if congress recesses until fall, as planned, it will not be taken up by the senate before September.

Radical changes are expected to be made in the bill by the senate committee.

A final vote on the census and reapportionment bill is expected in the senate later today. Polls indicate the bill will pass overwhelmingly.

The rules committee is meeting in executive session to consider five suggested changes, abolishing or modifying the secrecy rule. A report is to be made before next Tuesday and polls show a 55 to 22 majority in favor of open sessions for consideration of nominations.

The investigation into sources which made recent secret roll calls available for publication by the United Press, has been stopped temporarily.

RECOVER NINE BODIES FROM BLAST RUINS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 28.—The bodies of nine dead and two injured miners were removed today from an explosion-wrecked shaft of the Connellville mine of the Yolande-Connellville Coal and Coke Company.

A shift of twelve men were trapped in the mine by the explosion. Workmen toiled throughout the night before gaining entrance to the shaft. The two injured men probably will die, physicians said.

Little damage was done to the main shaft which goes to a depth of 1,000 feet.

ANNA GOULD'S SON COMMITTS SUICIDE

PARIS, May 28.—Howard de Talleyrand, son of the Duke and Duchess of Talleyrand, died at a private hospital today from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

The young man shot himself two weeks ago when his mother, the former Anna Gould of New York, refused to let him marry the girl he loved because he was too young. Howard would have been 20 in July.

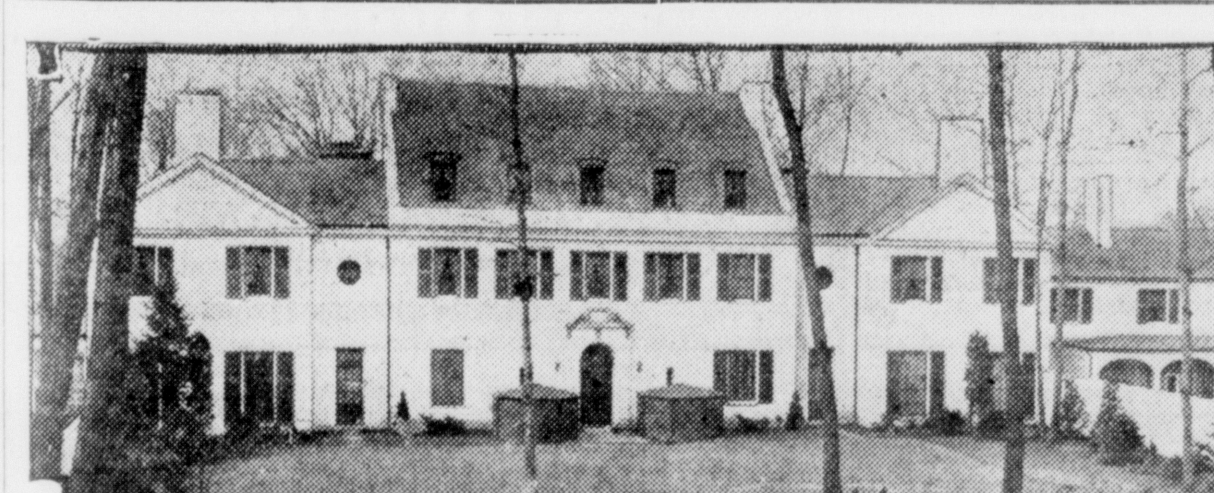

TENTH INFANTRY SOLDIER DROWNS

CIRCLEVILLE, O., May 28.—Search was continued today for the body of Private Hoyt Draper, Company G, Tenth Infantry, Fort Thomas, Ky., who drowned in the Scioto River here late yesterday while swimming with three companions. Draper was pulled under by a strong current. Draper's company took part in the recent army maneuvers at Columbus and they were marching to Fort Thomas and stopped off here.

WALES' GOLF HOME
LONDON, May 28.—For the second year in succession the Prince of Wales has taken Middletons House, Sunningdale, for his summer golfing home.

GOLDEN FIRE WOOD
ELDORADO SPRINGS, Mo., May 28.—For years John Bettis had seen an old log lying in his farm yard. Recently he needed firewood and decided to cut the log into stove lengths. He sawed it open and revealed $250 in gold dust hidden in a can thrust into an auger hole.

THREE PROTESTANT CHURCHES DISCUSS IMPORTANT MERGER

Presbyterians, Methodists
And Episcopalians
May Merge

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 28.—In this modern day of huge business organizations, consolidations and unions, 15,000,000 American church members stand on the threshold of one of the greatest mergers in history.

These millions—Presbyterians, Methodists and Episcopalians—who have made friendly advances for years, have come to that place where the actual joining of their forces is near enough at hand to be almost a reality.

Among the leaders who first proposed unions were the Presbyterians. During the recent years the church maintained a committee especially devoted to conversations with other denominational leaders on the matter of consolidations.

These discussions advanced so rapidly that here in the 11st Presbyterian general assembly nearly 1,000 delegates voted overwhelmingly to take union steps with their "cousin" churches, all branches of the Presbyterian denominations, the Methodists and the Episcopal, at once.

The action came somewhat as a surprise since it was expected that the union moves for the present would be confined largely to the sixteen branches of the Presbyterian church.

When one of the foremost leaders of the assembly was asked what prompted this swift action he replied:

"The alarming present day need for Christian education, the growing disrespect for law, particularly those with regard to liquor."

It generally was agreed that the 3,000,000 Presbyterians now divided among the sixteen branches of the church would be merged in two or three years, five years at the most.

"RINGS ON HER FINGERS"

And Grinding Wheel Needed To Take Them Off;
Lois Tired Of Rings Now

CLEVELAND, O., May 28.—Lois Conomy is only three and her ideas about jewelry are vague, but today she was certain there was one kind of ring she would never wear again. That kind is the kind that comes out of broken tricycles.

Lois, playing in front of her home here last night, slipped two of the "rings," known to mechanically inclined small boys as ballbearing races, over her fingers. One fit snugly over the right forefinger. The other over the left.

But when she was ready to go in the house, the rings wouldn't come off. Her parents couldn't get them off. Cold water applications at Charity Hospital failed to help. Then

While a nation wondered about their wedding plans, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne S. Morrow were married quietly Monday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight S. Morrow, Englewood, N. J., shown above. The principals in this interesting romance are shown below.

CRITICISM OF YOUTH SCORED BY COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Cameron Beck of New York Stock Exchange Advises
Sixty Central High Graduates At Seventieth
Annual Exercises Here.

Speaking from the standpoint of a business man, faith in the present generation of youth was expressed by Cameron Beck, personnel director of the New York Stock Exchange, who handles 10,000 high school boys a year, in an address at the seventieth annual commencement exercises for the graduating class of Xenia Central High School before a capacity audience at First M. E. Church Monday night.

Mr. Beck, who for ten years has directed the youthful destinies of more boys of high school age than serve any other financial concern in the country, is winding up a barnstorming tour of Ohio and some time ago made a tour of fourteen states during which he talked to 50,000 high school students.

"I came back refreshed in spirit and I am on the way to becoming a confirmed optimist as far as the younger generation is concerned," he said.

While visiting Western high schools, Mr. Beck said he saw some of the finest acts of human service he has ever witnessed in his life.

"Take Hollywood for instance," he explained. "Everyone smiles when you mention Hollywood, but the children of one of the high schools in that city, without any outside help, provided for fifty-two destitute families. They made clothes for the girls, donated wearing apparel for the boys, bought foodstuffs and even made some smaller pieces of furniture with their own hands."

The children of today, Beck asserted, have to face the same problems as were faced by yesterday's youth, but the problems are intensified a thousand-fold because of the accelerated rate at which we live. They will be able to deal with their problems, however, he said, if the older generation will stop criticizing and begin to lead them with understanding and a sense of humor, and of things human.

Mr. Beck's own particular province in which he works places pages and in other junior positions, is described by him as more like a well organized business college than like the employment department of a financial concern.

The boy who aspires to the gray uniform of the Stock Exchange clerk must have a high school diploma for its equivalent.

"Of course our job is to fit these

PLANES STILL HELD UP BY BAD WEATHER

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 28.—Continued unsatisfactory weather conditions in various sections of the North Atlantic kept the French and American monoplane Yellow Bird and Green Flash on the beach here today.

Rene Lefevre and Armeno Loti, Jr., navigator and radio operator, respectively, of the Yellow Bird, were still in New York, awaiting a favorable weather report. Jean Asolant, their pilot, was in Old Orchard, overseeing final preparations for the projected flight to Paris.

Pilot Roger Q. Williams and Navigator Lewis A. Yancey of the Green Flash, who hope to make a non-stop flight to Rome, stated there was no possibility of a take-off before tomorrow.

CEREMONY QUIETLY PERFORMED MONDAY AT MORROW ESTATE

Honeymoon Plans Are Kept Secret By Few
Informed

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., May 28.—Out of the millions of persons who discussed the marriage of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Anne S. Morrow there were barely a dozen who could say today whether the flier and his bride were honeymooning at sea, on land or in the air.

And the dozen wouldn't say. It was the same dozen who gathered under the blue larkspur and the columbine in the Morrow drawing room yesterday to see Dr. William Adams Brown, professor of systematic theology in Union Theological Seminary, pronounce an abbreviated form of the Episcopal and Presbyterian marriage ritual.

Outside, Englewood and the rest of the world went on its workaday way in the spring sunshine unaware that great things were happening up behind the white walls of the big house where the ambassador to Mexico lives when in the United States.

Today you could take your choice of three rumors as to the destination of the couple when they motored casually down the Morrow drive in Lindbergh's sedan after the ceremony, just as they have done any number of times in the last three weeks.

Lindbergh's Blue Falcon plane was fueled and tested at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., and the first report was that he and his bride had hidden somewhere in New York last night and would fly on a honeymoon today.

A yacht was reported to be anchored off the New Jersey coast ready to receive them.

Finally, there were persons who insisted the couple was aboard a train for North Haven, Me., the Morrow summer home.

It was almost two hours after the wedding that the world learned about it. The newspapermen who have been assigned to the Morrow estate since the ambassador's arrival from Mexico on Monday saw nothing unusual in the departure of Lindbergh and Miss Morrow yesterday afternoon.

Lindbergh was at the wheel of his Franklin sedan and he peered straight through the windshield as the car swung by the reporters. The bride smiled and waved at the group as the automobile picked up speed.

"Guess they're off to another tea," said a reporter.

Almost two hours later Charles W. Hulst, Englewood attorney and personal friend of the Morrrows came down the drive and said to Frank Fitzpatrick, policeman on guard at the gate:

"Tell the boys that Colonel Lindbergh and Miss Morrow were mar-

SEVEN PLANES OFF IN TROPHY AIR RACE

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 28.—Seven planes took off today in the Gardner trophy air race from Buffalo to Parks Field, St. Louis. At intervals of one minute, the little speedsters, all equipped with Wright-J-5 motors, were waved away by Nat E. Giffey, director of the airport and official starter.

Although the flight is expected to be without stops, several fliers indicated they would land at Indianapolis if forced to refuel enroute. The air distance is 660 miles to St. Louis. The winner and runner up will get $750 and $250 respectively, and will be eligible to enter the Gardner cup race on Memorial Day, from St. Louis to Indianapolis.

POLICE CHIEF DIES OF BULLET WOUNDS

BERWYN, Ill., May 28.—Chief of Police Charles Levy, 40, died in Berwyn Hospital today of revolver wounds received in an encounter with Chicago gangsters Saturday night.

Levy's assailant was believed to have been Bill Doody, notorious hoodlum and leader of the gang which wounded Postal Inspector William Jackson a few weeks ago.

Levy was shot through the abdomen as he attempted to trap Doody and several of the latter's companions. The police trap was frustrated by a tipster.

DIES FROM HEAT

RAVENNA, O., May 28.—Portage County's first heat victim of the year was Joseph Manilla, 74, of the county home.

The aged man was walking along a road when he fell dead.

MUNICIPAL JUDGE CANDIDATES MUST FILE HERE JUNE 14

Prospective candidates for the judgeship of Xenia's new municipal court, created by the state legislature, and which will start to function January 1, 1930, are being advised by R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the board of elections, that June 14 is the deadline date for filing of declarations of candidacy for the August 13 primary election.

Attorney E. Dawson Smith, Democrat, former judge of Xenia's old police court, which was declared unconstitutional and abolished, has announced his candidacy for judge of the new court, but has not yet filed his written declaration. No other candidates have announced.

Three vacancies will exist on the City Commission at the end of the year with expiration of the terms of S. M. McKay, Karl R. Babb and David Cherry.

Candidates for the commission must file their declarations of candidacy by July 13 but are not permitted to circulate petitions until June 24. Unless at least seven candidates, or more than twice the number of vacancies, file, the commission will not figure in the primary.

No indications have been given as to who the commission candidates will be or whether the present members whose terms expire will seek re-election. Since the municipal judicial district includes Xenia Twp., and eliminates the two present justices of the peace, the township will vote in the judgeship race.

OLD MASSIES CREEK CEMETERY IS BEING RESTORED BY GROUP

Twelve Revolutionary War soldiers are buried in the Old Massies Creek Cemetery, also known as Stevenson Cemetery, where Cedar Cliff Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be in charge of memorial services Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

Because this cemetery, which is the last resting place of many early settlers and veterans of other wars, has been neglected in recent years, the D. A. R. chapter has planned an appropriate program for the exercises there.

The chapter has assumed the responsibility of re-claiming the grave-yard and is urging a large attendance at the memorial exercises, particularly of those who have a direct interest in the cemetery. After the program there will follow a discussion with reference to effecting an organization to assist Xenia and Cedarville Twp., trustees in the work of placing this cemetery in order.

HERE'S MAN'S STRONGHOLD

Fair Sex De Trop In Speedway Pit.

Mrs. Alice Hoffman-Trobeck and Louis Chiron

By BONITA WITT

Central Press Staff Writer
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 28.—America, the land where woman is queen of all she surveys, according to legend, has one spot where her ladyship is decidedly de trop, the inner sanctum of the Indianapolis motor speedway.

It's all very well for her to deck herself out in her most fetching raiment and occupy a prominent place in the grandstand to view the running of the annual international 500-mile classic, but venture into the paddock and the pit! Speedway officials insist it "just isn't being done." And that explains the sadness of pretty Mrs. Alice Hoffman-Trobeck, green eyed and blonde.

Ever since Louis Chiron, who holds the French racing champion, ship, began to drive for her husband, who owns a large spark plug factory in France, three years ago, she has been with Chiron in his pit in every race, doing his timing, signaling him by means of a blackboard, seeing to his personal needs and supplying him with delectable tidbits of chicken and liquid refreshments in brief moments of respite.

Unaware of Taboo When Chiron decided to come to America to pit his car against the Yankee variety on Memorial day, Mrs. Hoffman-Trobeck came with him to assist in his training as she had done throughout Europe when her husband was too occupied with other business. They were unaware of the taboo at the Indianapolis track. For many years the feminine contingent has been kept from crossing the track into the paddock, lest some frail sister indulge in hysterics should a smashup occur.

"But," protested Mrs. Hoffman-Trobeck, who was born in the United States, but has not been on these shores since she went to Paris with her parents, at the age of two years, "I have real business in the pit on the day of the race. Chiron speaks no English nor does our mechanic. There is no one we can use in my place. I am not a flapper seeking publicity. This is a business proposition. Chiron is a director in my husband's company and it is necessary that I work with him the way I always have to protect our interests."

But speedway officials remained obdurate and the matter has been placed before the A. A. A. committee which passes the race rules.

As we lingered over a lunch prepared by the gifted Chiron who sets the hearts of feminine France to pitter-pattering when he flashes around the track in his blue car, wearing a blue sweater and a red neckerchief, Mrs. Hoffman-Trobeck told of racing in Europe and translated the rapid-fire comments of the racer.

Later, as we sat in the stands at the track, watching Chiron traveling around the oval, lap after lap, trying to accustom himself to the unfamiliar conditions, Mrs. Hoffman-Trobeck told of her start as a member of a racing crew.

Prepares Lunch for Chiron "It was just an accident. Something happened to our timer and I took his place. I found it thrilling and I began to study racing. My husband is not fitted temperamentally to stand the strain of working in the pit on the day of a race; he will not join me until Memorial day. So it falls upon me to see that Chiron is taken care of properly and I even have a lunch for him. Other drivers usually prepare their own meals."

Chiron admitted deserting his wife, Esther Harmon of Toledo, and eloping with Hazel Williams, 17, foster daughter of Mrs. Maxine Moberly, of Hotel Watterson, Louisville, Ky.

Wilson admitted transporting Dolores Hollenbeck, 18, from Kansas City to Cincinnati.

These have been dull days for Mrs. Hoffman-Trobeck, who is used to intense activity for weeks preceding a race. Since she cannot even watch the mechanic tinkering with the car in Chiron's garage she must confine herself to sitting in the grandstand and clocking him as he whizzes by, going over the day's workouts in the evening and informing the many young women, impressed with the Frenchman's good looks, that "Mr. Chiron is very sorry but he is very busy and cannot allow social activities to take up his time."

For nine years Judge Grant was incumbent of the county probate bench and for six years was a member of the court of appeals.

His reputation as an orator, as a legal philosopher and as a commentator upon contemporary, ethical and forensic tendencies was nationwide.

During the early part of this century, he became interested in the ownership of the Akron Times.

Miss Blackwell, a student flier was taking lessons from her brother, Clyde, a licensed pilot.

The plane in which the couple was riding had been stored in a hangar at the Blackwell ranch near here.

Miss Blackwell was at the controls as the plane skimmed along at about 2,000 feet when Clyde noticed his sister acting queerly, but she kept the ship on an even keel and headed for the landing field.

And, according to Clyde, the faster his sister squirmed the faster the ship traveled until it finally reached the landing field.

Miss Blackwell landed the airplane, almost dived from the pilot's seat and extricated two field mice from her flying costume.

Although having a natural aversion to mice, Miss Blackwell endured the horror of having the creatures crawl over her while she brought the plane to a safe landing.

The mice apparently had built a home in the plane while it was stored in its hangar.

Since she cannot even watch the mechanic tinkering with the car in Chiron's garage she must confine herself to sitting in the grandstand and clocking him as he whizzes by, going over the day's workouts in the evening and informing the many young women, impressed with the Frenchman's good looks, that "Mr. Chiron is very sorry but he is very busy and cannot allow social activities to take up his time."

GIRL FLYER BRINGS PLANE DOWN SAFELY IN SPITE OF MICE

LONGMONT, Colo., May 28.—When the medals are being passed around save one or two for Miss Blackwell, Longmont aviatrice.

Miss Blackwell, a student flyer, was taking lessons from her brother, Clyde, a licensed pilot.

The plane in which the couple was riding had been stored in a hangar at the Blackwell ranch near here.

Miss Blackwell was at the controls as the plane skimmed along at about 2,000 feet when Clyde noticed his sister acting queerly, but she kept the ship on an even keel and headed for the landing field.

And, according to Clyde, the faster his sister squirmed the faster the ship traveled until it finally reached the landing field.

Miss Blackwell landed the airplane, almost dived from the pilot's seat and extricated two field mice from her flying costume.

Although having a natural aversion to mice, Miss Blackwell endured the horror of having the creatures crawl over her while she brought the plane to a safe landing.

The mice apparently had built a home in the plane while it was stored in its hangar.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD REWARDS—And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightful land, saith the Lord of hosts.—Malachi 3:11, 12.

WHY MACHINE GUNS?

Deputy Police Commissioner John Stege of Chicago asks a question which must have occurred to thousands of Americans: Why are machine guns manufactured commercially anywhere, and sold to anybody, in peace time?

Chicago is deeply concerned because 35 persons have been killed by machine guns in that city since 1926, when the first one was imported. Seven men were massacred by machine guns there a few months ago. Cathedrals, hotels, saloons have been sprayed impartially by their withering fire. That is one side of it—wholesale murder.

The other side is the total lack of any use for these guns on the part of law enforcing authorities. Each gun sold to a retailer carries an invoice with the words: "Sold you with the understanding that you will be responsible for their resale only to those on the side of law and order." The comment of Deputy Commissioner Stege on this remarkable admonition is:

"The weapons are absolutely of no value to police, banks, guards, messengers or any one other than criminals."

Obviously no bank would care to spray its lobby, no police squad would desire to "bracket" a street with deadly machine gun fire at the rate of a hundred shots in a few seconds. Congress has halted the mail order pistol. Why not abolish the peacetime commercial manufacture of the machine gun? Why not limit the output to government arsenals for army training and army stores?

Secretary Mellon says that he is deficient in the Christian virtue of resignation. With what softer answer could he turn away the wrath of those who are attempting to induce him to resign, after the failure of the "Moscow gang" in the senate to block his appointment?

General Calles deplores the failure of the Mexican people to make the most of the ballot. Give them time. Americans have had the ballot longer than Mexicans have; and only about 50 per cent of them use it.

Down in Oklahoma they have dug up a part of the skeleton of an elephant that stood 18 feet in his socks, or about 50 per cent higher than the late lamented Jumbo. And Barnum missed him.

Your BROADWAY And Mine

By Walter Winchell

NEW YORK—When one of the town's composers made his bow as a musical comedy producer last fall he realized sensibly that he probably did not know all there was to know about the theatrical business and engaged an old-time house and company manager to protect him from an imposing world.

One day a friend brought into his office a manuscript for a dramatic production. The producer read a few pages while the friend waited. He was called to the telephone and laid the manuscript on his desk. The old-timer who was in the room picked it up, turned it over to the first page, and then turned on the producer.

"Forty-five characters," he said, sarcastically. "When you have been in this business as long as I have you will have learned that you can't even afford to waste time reading scripts that call for big troupes." Then he handed the manuscript to the producer's friend, who put it under his arm and walked out.

Sound, sane advice ordinarily. But this particular manuscript was "Street Scene," which won this year's Pulitzer prize and unless there is an early judgement day, will make a couple of millions of dollars for William A. Brady, whose first hit it is in 13 years.

FOOLS AND THEIR HONEYES You've probably witnessed it before. Elmer Harris employed the formula, but even if you have, the indications are that you will chuckle and howl at its absurdities again. It is now called "Stepping Out," and it is Charles B. Dillingham's latest tent at the Fulton. We saw something similar earlier this year at the Republic in "My Girl Friday," and a few years ago at the Music Box it crashed the hit division under the name of "Cradle Snatchers."

It is peopled with worth-whiles who have been trained along the broad lines and situations which come in bunches in this version, and they make the most of the author's innuendos. At any rate

THE "BUSINESS BRAIN"

A mechanical appliance known as the "business brain" has been invented. It will do the work of a cash register, book keeping and adding machine, and at the same time make a complete record of a sale in another part of the building. That's about enough in the way of invention. The question arises as to what the human brain, released by machinery from so many duties, is going to do with its leisure hours.

IN THE WISEST DIRECTION

George Eastman, many times a millionaire of Rochester, has cultivated the fine art of spending for the common good. Making a great contribution to a London hospital, he is publicly thanked by the Prince of Wales and Premier Baldwin. The Prime Minister says American generosity has become proverbial and Americans give in the "wisest direction," for education and toward health.

HANKING DECKS

One reads in the Bible of the hanging gardens of Babylon, built by a generous king to help his wife, who was a hill country woman, to forget her homesickness. The hanging gardens were among the seven wonders of the world. And now the Holland American steamship line announces a new ocean liner with a hanging promenade deck. Man's ingenuity, which began a long time ago, is still fresh.

CHANGING OUR WAYS

An "Institute of Religion" is to be held in the east in June. Outstanding leaders of the church and religious world will discuss such topics as "The Present Status of the Movement for a United Church," and "The Work Awaiting a United Church," and so on. Much brave talk in the world. In the end it may begin to grow some fruit. One wonders how much time the average citizen gives to a definite program for changing his ways.

FORESIGHT

The attention being given this month to recreation and play and the health of children bespeaks a strain of real civilization in modern life. Money spent for the preservation of the children indicates the intelligent quality of foresight.

LOSS FROM IMPROPERLY ADDRESSED MAIL DESCRIBED

By WALTER F. BROWN

Walter Folger Brown was born at Massillon, O., May 31, 1869. He is a graduate of Harvard university where he studied law. From 1894 to 1908 he practiced law at Toledo, O., with his father, and since then has been the senior member of a law firm there. In 1921 he was chairman of the congressional joint committee on postal organization, representing the President. He was named assistant secretary of commerce in 1927 and was recently appointed postmaster general by President Hoover.

A waste amounting to approximately $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 annually to the post office department and the users of the postal service, results from improperly prepared and improperly addressed mail.

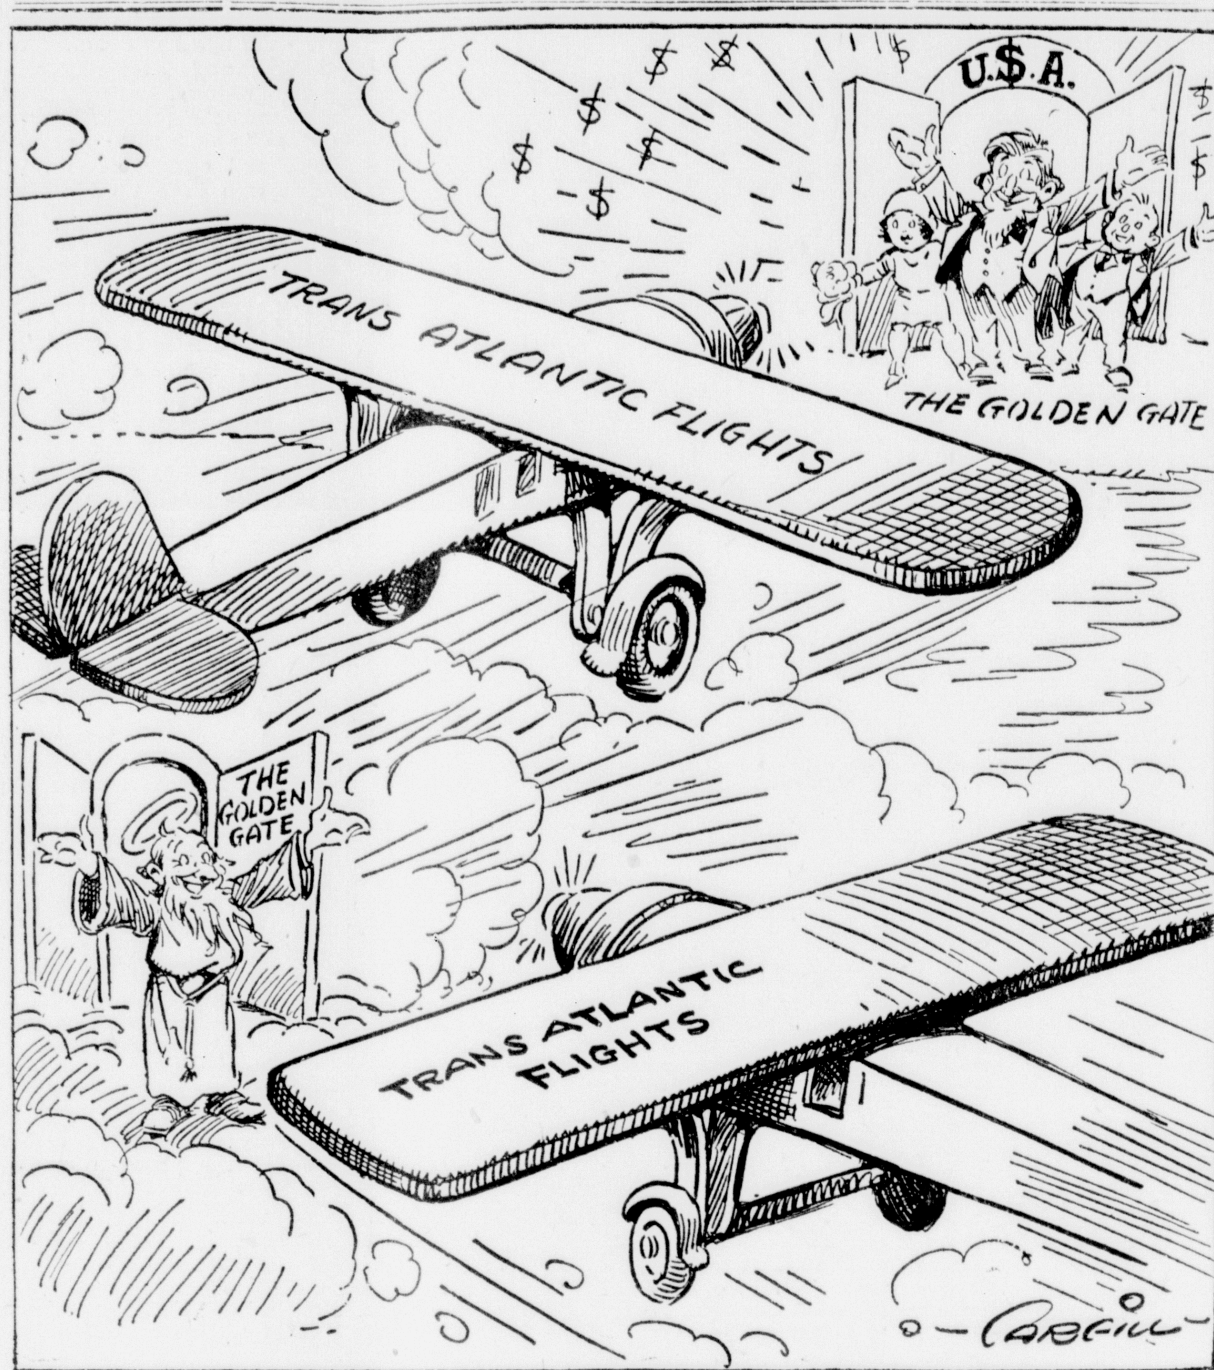

The post office department maintains four offices for dead letters and 13 for dead parcels. During the last fiscal year 23,600,000 letters and 460,000 parcels went to the dead letter and dead parcel offices. The actual cost of operating these offices was $277,000. Of this amount $259,000 was realized from postage paid for the return of letters and parcels, cash and stamps taken from dead letters, and the proceeds of the sale of undeliverable parcels. The net loss to the government from the operation of the dead letter and dead parcel offices is not a significant sum. A much larger loss, however, is incurred in the preliminary handling of this improperly prepared and improperly addressed mail.

Letters addressed to an existing post office, but bearing an incorrect street address, or none at all, are forwarded to the post office named and there given what we call "directory service." That is to say, they are turned over to a corps of clerks who are employed to ferret out the correct addresses, if possible, from the city direct and other sources of information. If the mail is addressed to a post office which is not located in the state named but which is located in another state, an effort is made to find the addressee there. The cost of giving this extra service to improperly addressed mail amounts to an enormous sum. In the city of New York the cost of this service is approximately $400,000 a year, and in Chicago the cost is more than $500,000. It is conservative to say that this unnecessary cost to the post office department in the whole country is between three and four million dollars a year.

But think also, if you will, of the cost to the patrons of the post office department. The postage and stationery wasted amounts to considerable more than $500,000 a year, $160,000 in cash and stamps is permanently lost to the senders of improperly addressed letters and merchandise found in undeliverable parcels, or lost in the parcel post.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Hands are being made up these days as skillfully as faces. Arms, shoulders, too (when they appear), and even legs and feet. But let's stick to the hands, for now, since we are considering each phase of their care this week.

There are two kinds of hand make-up—the dainty, delicate, rose-and-natural kind suited to evening and all formal occasions, and the brown sun-tan type that is worn both for the evening and for sports and all informal occasions.

Of course the hands must be sun-tanned, too, as well as face and neck, for nothing would be more artificial looking than to see pale, northern-colored hands with a warm, southern-colored face. When this brown make-up is being applied to the hands, be very sure to smooth it evenly along the inner sides of the fingers, so that no tell-tale white lines will appear. And with it use a deeper, henna-tinted nail polish to carry out the tone of brighter color. Light, natural-tinted polish will show up blue and sickly against the warm brown tan.

Women who prefer to wear their own natural untanned complexion in the evening, enhanced by delicate, pearly powders and bright cheek and lip rouge, will wear the same fair make-up on their hands. If they use a liquid powder, as most women prefer to in the evening for neck and shoulders, they will smooth this also over the hands. And they may choose to wear a touch of liquid or cream rouge on each dainty fingertip. Pink palms, too, are attractive if you do not make them too pink. And very faint shading of rouge along the outside of the fingers and down the outer edges of the hands will make wide hands look slimmer.

If you do not use a liquid powder, smooth the same foundation over your hands that you use on

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

A GREAT COMEBACK In the summer of 1919 there was not an ocean-going ship that carried the German flag.

Before the war, Germany and Great Britain were rivals in peaceful (or reasonably peaceful) courting of the oceans. The German flag went everywhere on German ships. Germany lost the war. Great Britain took most of the German liners and changed their names. The United States took what few she could find in American ports. Among them was the Leviathan.

Germany was left shipless. Ten years after the war, Germany is almost back where she was in 1914, so far as shipping tonnage is concerned.

T. R. Ybarra has an astonishing article about it in the May World's Work. I gather from this article that Germany soon will be far stronger in passenger and freight carrying facilities at sea than she was before the war. Germany had been second in merchant shipping. She dropped to sixth when the allies took her ships away from her. She is now in third place, Great Britain and the United States alone leading her.

I think this is one of the most amazing demonstrations of a nation's energy and industry in all history. If you are going to keep Germany down, you've got to whip her every ten years. And the sacks is annually sold at auction for about $100,000—probably less than one-third of what it cost the senders.

Cookies with Filling I believe the habit of eating radishes for breakfast is a French one. It is well worth copying. If you have your own garden it would be delightful to pull a few fresh ones, wash them and have them for breakfast with your whole wheat toast. They are such a pretty color, too, that they add a delightful touch to the table.

Cookies with Filling—First prepare the filling: One cup chopped raisins, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup water, one teaspoon flour. Cook until thick. Cookies: One cup sugar, one-half cup milk, one-half cup shortening, one egg, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon vanilla, flour to roll. Roll thin, cut in rounds, place in tins and on each cookie spread one teaspoon of filling. Cover with another round and bake.

Nut Bread—One cup sugar, one teaspoon salt, three cups flour, one cup nuts (ground), three teaspoons baking powder. Mix dry ingredients, then add one egg and one-half cup sweet milk. Let mixture set for 15 or 20 minutes. Bake 45 minutes in moderate oven.

EDITORIAL

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

I KNOW MY EGGS.

Not long ago a reader asked me if I considered taking the germ of the egg out, before making egg nog, detrimental to its value as a body builder. I answered: No, it usually is removed simply because it is stringy.

Those of you who know anything about embryology probably got a smile from that and undoubtedly were convinced that I didn't know my eggs.

Perhaps it will interest you to know that in my college (University of Southern California), quite a few years ago, I majored in biology, embryology being one of the subjects I had to pay a great deal of attention to. The hours I spent on the embryos of chickens, starting from the earliest germs in captivity, and preparing specimens (a very delicate process), and examining them microscopically, and then passing exams on them! It has always been a sore point with me that I paid $25 to one of my classmates for her 50 prepared specimens to supplement my own, because I never used them in any way. I am wondering if this created a complex, making me deliberately forget what the germ of the egg was, and revert to the layman's idea (which was undoubtedly held by the woman who first wrote and asked if it were harmful to remove it).

In reality, the germ of the egg is so tiny that unless it were pretty well incubated, it wouldn't be seen. And if it were pretty well incubated, you wouldn't eat the egg, for you would want your chickens in a little more mature form. The stringy part comes from the membrane which encloses the yolk and is present in all eggs.

I probably wouldn't have realized my error if two readers hadn't kindly called my attention to it. Although it really is not a matter of public health, I am writing of this not only to acknowledge my error, but to let you know I want your constructive criticism.

One of the readers suggested I write an article on eggs for edible purposes, and it's a good suggestion, so I'll do it soon.

"It is dangerous to have a protruding ear on a young man or 18 operated on to get it to sit closer to the head? It is my own fault for not looking after it when the boy was a baby. Whom do you recommend for an operation and how much does it cost? Is there any cure for corns?

"MRS. R."

Yes, protruding ears are successfully remedied. Mrs. R. You must ring up your county medical society and ask for a list of plastic surgeons who do this type of work. Physicians' fees depend more on the financial circumstances of the patient, and the seriousness of the case.

No, it is not a dangerous operation.

There is no sure remedy for corns. By this I mean that they will recur if the shoe presses on the toes in any way. If you are skillful with a safety razor, you can moisten the corn with a 3 per cent solution of sodium hydroxide in water, and pare them, or you can use some of the prepared corn remedies. These consist of collodion with salicylic acid. (A good formula is 1 dram (about one level tablespoon) of salicylic acid to 1 ounce of flexible collodion.)

The safest and most satisfactory thing to do is to go to a good chiropodist once or twice a month.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

I should like to print a warning to all women who are alone in the world and who have a little money to beware of men who want to "borrow" or "invest" it for them. Almost every day there is some sad story in the papers about some widow who "loaned" her life's savings to a man friend and now has neither "friend" nor money. It would seem as if every one in the world would have been warned sufficiently, but no, there seem to be just as many "suckers" as there are "shysters."

"Good" men don't borrow large sums of money from their lady friends, unless said friend happens to be in business with them. By "good" I mean good business standing as well as morals.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a woman past 40. I met a gentleman some years ago and he was not living with his wife. I did not know that he had one. I kept company with him for five years. In the meantime, she died. I am a mother. For some family reason he kept away from me. I occasionally met him and he told me he was busy. So I let him go, but I did like him and it made me very unhappy. For two years he did not see me or correspond with me until last year he called me up and wanted to borrow some money. I told him I could not loan him any. I cannot understand why he calls me up every three or four months. I ask him the reason, and he tells me 'I want to hear your voice and see if you are well.' Will you please tell me what I should do next time he calls me?" "SAVERINA."

You certainly are a very wise woman, Saverina, to not let yourself be wheeled into losing money on the strength of friendship. What a pity more women have not your good judgment and wisdom. It seems to me that this man is one to be trusted as a real friend, he would explain his reason for calling in a different manner.

"Dear Virginia Lee: My folks do not want me to run around with a certain girl whom I have been chumming with for over a year. They think that she isn't nice, and I think that she is. I can hardly give her up because I like her so well. Who is supposed to start the conversation on a date, and what shall we talk about, and how can one not be boring? Do you think it's all right for a girl of 15 to go out riding and to have a date occasionally?"

"CURLY HEAD." It's a pretty safe rule for a girl of 15 to do as her people say, dear, and if they think an occasional ride and date are O. K., why be thankful and don't betray their trust in you. The girl usually starts the conversation and talks about anything she thinks the boy is interested in—shows, games, school, current events, etc.

THE ONE-MINUTE PULPIT A foolish son is the calamity of his father; and the contentions of a wife are a continual dropping. House and riches are the inheritance of fathers; and a prudent wife is from the Lord.—Proverbs, xx, 13, 14.

Peter's Adventures

BY FLORENCE VINCENT

"THEY FLY SO HIGH—"

Gander had grown interested in the description of the swamp he loved so, but at this moment the Wild Geese interrupted his story, growing impatient at the delay.

"Oh, Wild Gander! Wild Gander!" cried they in chorus. "Isn't it time to fly?" And one gay Goose added:

"Oh, boys; oh, boys, where do we go from here?"

Father Wild Gander took the interruption good naturedly. "When do we go? Right now!" declared he. "Where? To the southern swamps, if we have good luck. Come now, no more loitering. Let's be up and doing. Everybody ready?"

"Ready," cried the Wild Geese. Tommy Gosling grew so excited that he fluttered about in the darkness and came very near to getting his tip tail feather into the boy's eye. Peter was glad when Father Gander made his young son take his place in the flock and told Peter, himself to take a seat among his warm feathers.

Then, just as he had done before, Gander gave the signal, "Go!" Scarcely had his honk died away than the Geese were in the air. How they ever managed to clear their branches in the dark the boy never knew, but they were well out the tree tops in no time. Higher and higher they mounted, until it seemed to Peter they must be aiming for the stars. At last they reached the plane they were soaring toward and along the starlit path they flew as sure of their course as if it had been daylight on an open road.

It was not the first time that the boy had been night riding under the stars, but certainly he had never been carried so fast or so far. He would have been stiff with the cold if it had not been for Wild Gander's thick feathers. As it was, Peter cuddled down among them and felt as snug as a bug in a rug.

"What a fine chance to count the stars! I shall never be as close to them again," thought he, and he started in.

"One, two, ten, twenty!" Peter didn't get much further before he gave up as a helpless task. The stars seemed to get in each other's way and twinkled so brightly that they mixed him up and somehow he just couldn't keep track of them at all. What was the matter with the stars, anyhow? They were growing tinier, anyhow? Where was that old moon? It must have slipped beneath a cloud. Oh, well, he wasn't going to look for it. He was too comfortable to move his head.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD REWARDS—And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightful land, saith the Lord of hosts.—Malachi 3:11, 12.

WHY MACHINE GUNS?

Deputy Police Commissioner John Stege of Chicago asks a question which must have occurred to thousands of Americans: Why are machine guns manufactured commercially anywhere, and sold to anybody, in peace time?

Chicago is deeply concerned because 35 persons have been killed by machine guns in that city since 1926, when the first one was imported. Seven men were massacred by machine guns there a few months ago. Cathedrals, hotels, saloons have been sprayed impartially by their withering fire. That is one side of it—wholesale murder.

The other side is the total lack of any use for these guns on the part of law enforcing authorities. Each gun sold to a retailer carries an invoice with the words: "Sold you with the understanding that you will be responsible for their resale only to those on the side of law and order." The comment of Deputy Commissioner Stege on this remarkable admonition is:

"The weapons are absolutely of no value to police, banks, guards, messengers or any one other than criminals."

Obviously no bank would care to spray its lobby, no police squad would desire to "bracket" a street with deadly machine gun fire at the rate of a hundred shots in a few seconds. Congress has halted the mail order pistol. Why not abolish the peacetime commercial manufacture of the machine gun? Why not limit the output to government arsenals for army training and army stores?

Secretary Mellon says that he is deficient in the Christian virtue of resignation. With what softer answer could he turn away the wrath of those who are attempting to induce him to resign, after the failure of the "Moscow gang" in the senate to block his appointment?

General Calles deplores the failure of the Mexican people to make the most of the ballot. Give them time. Americans have had the ballot longer than Mexicans have; and only about 50 per cent of them use it.

Down in Oklahoma they have dug up a part of the skeleton of an elephant that stood 18 feet in his socks, or about 50 per cent higher than the late lamented Jumbo. And Barnum missed him.

Your BROADWAY And Mine

By Walter Winchell

NEW YORK—When one of the town's composers made his bow as a musical comedy producer last fall he realized sensibly that he probably did not know all there was to know about the theatrical business and engaged an old-time house and company manager to protect him from an imposing world.

One day a friend brought into his office a manuscript for a dramatic production. The producer read a few pages while the friend waited. He was called to the telephone and laid the manuscript on his desk. The old-timer who was in the room picked it up, turned it idly to the first pages and then turned on the producer. "Forty-five characters," he said, sarcastically. "When you have been in this business as long as I have you will have learned that you can't even afford to waste time reading scripts that call for big troupes." Then he handed the manuscript to the producer's friend, who put it under his arm and walked out.

Sound, sane advice ordinarily. But this particular manuscript was "Street Scene," which won this year's Pulitzer prize and unless there is an early judgement day, will make a couple of millions of dollars for William A. Brady, whose first hit it is in 13 years.

FOOLS AND THEIR HONEYES—You've probably witnessed it before. Elmer Harris employed the formula, but even if you have, the indications are that you will chuckle and howl at its absurdities again. It is now called "Stepping Out," and it is Charles B. Dillingham's latest tenant at the Fulton. We saw something similar earlier this year at the Republic in "My Girl Friday," and a few years ago at the Music Box it crashed the hit division under the name of "Cradle Snatchers."

It is peopled with worth-whiles who have been trained along the broad lines and situations which come in bunches in this version, and they make the most of the author's innuendos. At any rate

THE "BUSINESS BRAIN"

A mechanical appliance known as the "business brain" has been invented. It will do the work of a cash register, book keeping and adding machine, and at the same time make a complete record of a sale in another part of the building. That's about enough in the way of invention. The question arises as to what the human brain, released by machinery from so many duties, is going to do with its leisure hours.

'IN THE WISEST DIRECTION'

George Eastman, many times a millionaire of Rochester, has cultivated the fine art of spending for the common good. Making a great contribution to a London hospital, he is publicly thanked by the Prince of Wales and Premier Baldwin. The Prime Minister says American generosity has become proverbial and Americans give in the "wisest direction," for education and toward health.

HANKING DECKS

One reads in the Bible of the hanging gardens of Babylon, built by a generous king to help his wife, who was a hill country woman, to forget her homesickness. The hanging gardens were among the seven wonders of the world. And now the Holland American steamship line announces a new ocean liner with a hanging promenade deck. Man's ingenuity, which began a long time ago, is still fresh.

CHANGING OUR WAYS

An "Institute of Religion" is to be held in the east in June. Outstanding leaders of the church and religious world will discuss such topics as "The Present Status of the Movement for a United Church," and "The Work Awaiting a United Church," and so on. Much brave talk in the world. In the end it may begin to grow some fruit. One wonders how much time the average citizen gives to a definite program for changing his ways.

FORESIGHT

The attention being given this month to recreation and play and the health of children bespeaks a strain of real civilization in modern life. Money spent for the preservation of the children indicates the intelligent quality of foresight.

LOSS FROM IMPROPERLY ADDRESSED MAIL DESCRIBED

By WALTER F. BROWN

Postmaster General Walter Foster Brown was born at Massillon, O., May 31, 1869. He is a graduate of Harvard university where he studied law. From 1894 to 1908 he practiced law at Toledo, O., with his father, and since then has been the senior member of a law firm there. In 1921 he was chairman of the congressional joint committee on reorganization representing the President. He was named assistant secretary of commerce in 1927 and was recently appointed postmaster general by President Hoover.

A waste amounting to approximately $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 annually to the post office department and the users of the postal service, results from improperly prepared and improperly addressed mail.

The post office department maintains four offices for dead letters and 13 for dead parcels. During the last fiscal year 23,600,000 letters and 460,000 parcels went to the dead letter and dead parcel offices. The actual cost of operating these offices was $277,000. Of this amount $259,000 was realized from postage paid for the return of letters and parcels, cash and stamps taken from dead letters, and a post office of the sale of undeliverable parcels. The net loss to the government from the operation of the dead letter and dead parcel offices is not a significant sum. A much larger loss, however, is incurred in the preliminary handling of this improperly prepared and improperly addressed mail.

Letters addressed to an existing post office but bearing an incorrect street address, or none at all, are forwarded to the post office named and there given what we call "directory service." That is to say, they are turned over to a corps of clerks who are employed to ferret out the correct addresses, if possible, from the city directory and other sources of information. If the mail is addressed to a post office which is not located in the state named but which is located in another state, an effort is made to find the addressee there. The cost of giving this extra service to improperly addressed mail amounts to an enormous sum. In the city of New York the cost of this service is approximately $450,000 a year, and in Chicago the cost is more than $500,000. It is conservative to say that this unnecessary cost to the post office department in the whole country is between three and four million dollars a year.

But think also, if you will, of the cost to the patrons of the post office department. The postage and stationery wasted amounts to considerable more than $500,000 a year, $160,000 in cash and stamps is permanently lost to the senders of improperly addressed letters and merchandise found in undeliverable parcels post or loose in the parcel post.

IF THEY "MAKE IT" AND IF THEY DON'T

How to Achieve Beauty

BY NIMÉ, HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Hands are being made up these days as skillfully as faces. Arms, shoulders, toes (when they appear), and even legs and feet. But let's stick to the hands, for now, since we are considering each phase of their care this week.

There are two kinds of hand make-up: the dainty, delicate, rose-and-natural kind suited to evening and all formal occasions, and the brown sun-tan type that is worn both for the evening and for sports and all informal occasions.

Of course the hands must be sun-tanned, too, as well as face and neck, for nothing would be more artificial looking than to see pale, northern-colored hands with a warm, southern-colored face. When this brown make-up is being applied to the hands, be very sure to smooth it evenly along the inner sides of the fingers, so that no tell-tale white lines will appear. And with it use a deeper, henna-tinted nail polish to carry out the tone of brighter color. Light, natural-tinted polish will show up blue and sickly against the warm brown tan.

Women who prefer to wear their own natural untanned complexion in the evening, enhanced by delicate, pearly powders and bright cheek and lip rouge, will wear the same fair make-up on their hands. If they use a liquid powder, as most women prefer to in the evening for neck and shoulders, they will smooth this also over the hands. And they may choose to wear a touch of liquid or cream rouge on each dainty fingertip. Pink palms, too, are attractive if you do not make them too pink. And very faint shading of rouge along the outside of the fingers and down the outer edges of the hands will make wide hands look slimmer.

If you do not use a liquid powder, smooth the same foundation over your hands that you use on your face before applying powder. This will soften the skin, giving it the same "mat" tone that your face should have. Hands and face should match — remember that in making up your hands.

And now for rings. The right sort of ring can make hands and fingers look slimmer, longer and more delicate. Short fingers should wear rings with long stones, set vertically to give an impression of greater length. And do not wear a ring on your little finger if you want your hand to look longer. Wear it on the third or "ring" finger and see how much more graceful your whole hand will look.

A very delicate, slender ring, whose decoration, if any, is horizontal, will not show off to best advantage on the large, long-fingered hand. It will seem insignificant and small by comparison, and its beauty may be missed.

Large hands can wear large rings and stones better than small ones can. But elongated settings are most flattering. The small hand, loaded down with large rings, is quite likely to look strangely overburdened.

Diamonds and the light-colored precious and semi-precious stones glitter brilliant and beautiful upon fair, dainty hands. But with the sun-tan make-up, or with a natural tan, the bright-colored stones create a more strikingly brilliant effect. Emeralds and jade, sapphires and rubies, yellow diamonds and even black onyx, and all the bright varieties of synthetic costume jewels, accent delightfully brown, glowing hands and arms.

Today, when ensembles are being planned to include not only clothes and make-up, but jewelry as well, it is important to consider what complexion you will wear with certain jewels and clothes.

A GREAT COMEBACK—In the summer of 1919 there was not an ocean-going ship that carried the German flag. Before the war, Germany and Great Britain were rivals in peaceful (or reasonably peaceful) courting of the oceans. The German flag went everywhere on German ships. Germany lost the war. Great Britain took most of the German liners and changed their names. The United States took what few she could find in American ports. Among them was the Leviathan.

Germany was left shipless. Ten years after the war, Germany is almost back where she was in 1914, so far as shipping tonnage is concerned.

T. R. Ybarra has an astonishing article about it in the May of World's Work. I gather from this article that Germany soon will be far stronger in passenger and freight carrying facilities at sea than she was before the war.

Germany had been second in merchant shipping. She dropped to sixth when the allies took her ships away from her.

She is now in third place, Great Britain and the United States alone leading her. I think this is one of the most amazing demonstrations of a nation's energy and industry in all history.

If you are going to keep Germany down, you've got to whip her every ten years. And the

I believe the habit of eating radishes for breakfast is a French one. It is well worth copying. If you have your own garden it would be delightful to pull a few fresh ones, wash them and have them for breakfast with your whole wheat toast. They are such a pretty color, too, that they add a delightful touch to the table.

Cookies with Fillings—First prepare the filling: One cup chopped raisins, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup water, one teaspoon flour. Cook until thick. Cookies: One cup sugar, one-half cup milk, one-half cup shortening, one egg, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon vanilla, flour to roll. Roll thin, cut in rounds, place in tins and on each cookie spread one teaspoon of filling. Cover with another round and bake.

Nut Bread—One cup sugar, one teaspoon salt, three cups flour, one cup nuts (ground), three teaspoons baking powder. Mix dry ingredients, then add one egg and one-half cup sweet milk. Let mixture set for 15 or 20 minutes. Bake 45 minutes in moderate oven.

Ask me why I send to you
This Primrose, thus bearded with dew?

I will whisper to your ears:

So yellow-green, and sickly too?

Ask me why the stalk is weak
And bending, yet it doth not break?

I will answer: These discover

DINNER STORIES HIDDEN MEALS

"Mrs. Jones," said the lodger in a timid voice, "I'm afraid I must complain about the lunch that I was given this afternoon."

The landlady glared at him.

"What was the matter with it?" she snapped.

"Oh, it was quite all right, but it didn't satisfy me. I'm still feeling hungry."

Her glance became worse.

"I don't know what there was to find fault with," she said. "I always give you good, plain food."

"Yes," said the lodger. "It was good, I admit. But I do wish you had made it plainer. As it was, I could hardly see it."

Higher and higher they mounted.

Then, just as he had done before, Gander gave the signal. "Go!"

Scarcely had his honk died away when the Geese were in the air.

How they ever managed to clear the branches in the dark the boy never knew, but they were well out of the tree tops in no time.

Higher and higher they mounted.

until it seemed to Peter they must be aiming for the stars. At last they reached the plane they were soaring toward and along the starlit path they flew as sure of their course as if it had been daylight on an open road.

It was not the first time that the boy had been night riding under the stars, but certainly he had never been carried so fast or so far. He would have been stiff with the cold if it had not been for Wild Gander's thick feathers. As it was, Peter cuddled down among them and felt as snug as a bug in a rug.

"What a fine chance to count the stars! I shall never be as close to them again," thought he, and he started in.

"One, two, ten, twenty!" Peter didn't get much further before he gazed up as a helpless task. The stars seemed to get in each other's way and twinkled so brightly that they mixed him up and somehow he just couldn't keep track of them at all. What was the matter with the stars, anyhow? They were growing tinier, anyhow? Where was that old moon? It must have slipped beneath a cloud. Oh, well, he wasn't going to look for it. He was too comfortable to move his head.

EDITORIAL

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

I KNOW MY EGGS.

Not long ago a reader asked me if I considered taking the germ of the egg out, before making egg nog, detrimental to its value as a body builder. I answered: No, it usually is removed simply because it is stringy.

Those of you who know anything about embryology probably got a smile from that and undoubtedly were convinced that I didn't know my eggs.

Perhaps it will interest you to know that in my college (University of Southern California), quite a few years ago, I majored in biology, embryology being one of the subjects I had to pay a great deal of attention to. The hours I spent on the embryos of chickens, starting from the earliest germs in captivity, and preparing specimens (a very delicate process), and examining them microscopically, and then passing exams on them! It has always been a sore point with me that I paid $25 to one of my classmates for her 50 prepared specimens to supplement my own, because I never used to know in any way. I am wondering if this created a complex, making me deliberately forget what the germ of the egg was, and revert to the layman's idea (which was undoubtedly held by the woman who first wrote and asked if it were harmful to remove it).

In reality, the germ of the egg is so tiny that unless it were pretty well incubated, it wouldn't be seen. And if it were pretty well incubated, you wouldn't eat the egg, for you would want your chickens in a little more mature form. The stringy part comes from the membrane which encloses the yolk and is present in all eggs.

I probably wouldn't have realized my error if two readers hadn't kindly called my attention to it. Although it really is not a matter of public health, I am writing of this not only to acknowledge my error, but to let you know I want your constructive criticism.

One of the readers suggested I write an article on eggs for edible purposes, and it's a good suggestion, so I'll do it soon.

"It is dangerous to have a protruding ear on a young man or

"MRS. R."

Yes, protruding ears are successfully remedied, Mrs. R. You must ring up your county medical society and ask for a list of plastic surgeons who do this type of work. Physicians' fees depend more or less on the financial circumstances of the patient, and the seriousness of the case.

No, it is not a dangerous operation.

There is no sure remedy for corns. By this I mean that they will recur if the shoe presses on the toes in any way. If you are skillful with a safety razor, you can moisten the corn with a 3 per cent solution of sodium hydroxide in water, and pare them, or you can use some of the prepared corn remedies. These consist of colloid with salicylic acid. (A good formula is 1 dram (about one level tablespoon) of salicylic acid to 1 ounce of flexible colloid.)

The safest and most satisfactory thing to do is to go to a good chiropodist once or twice a month.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

I should like to print a warning to all women who are alone in the world and who have a little money to beware of men who want to "borrow" or "invest" it for them. Almost every day there is some sad story in the papers about some widow who "loaned" her life's savings to a man friend and now has neither "friend" nor money. It would seem as if every one in the world would have been warned sufficiently, but, no, there seem to be just as many "suckers" as there are shylocks.

"Good" men don't borrow large sums of money from their lady friends, unless said friend happens to be in business with them. By "good" I mean good business standing as well as morals.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a woman past 40. I met a gentleman some years ago and he was not living with his wife. I did not know that he had one. I kept company with him for five years. In the middle of the year, I am a widow. For some family reason he kept away from me. I occasionally met him and he told me he was busy. So I let him go, but I did like him and it made me very unhappy. For two years he did not see me or correspond with me until last year he called me up and wanted to borrow some money. I told him I could not loan him any. I cannot understand why he calls me up

BOWERSVILLE WINS OPENING GAME WITH TENTH INNING RALLY

The Bowersville Bayliffs were finally permitted to inaugurate their diamond season Sunday afternoon and celebrated the unexpected event by going ten innings to defeat the Park Athletics, 2 to 1 at Bowersville.

Taylor, making his first appearance in a Bayliff uniform, pitched a nice game. For the first five innings he did not allow a hit and for the next five only one in an inning.

In the seventh he pitched out a nice hole when he walked the first man up. The next singled, the man was retired on a line drive which N. Murrell took care of. Then he proceeded to strike out the next two.

It looked bad in the ninth when the first man up doubled, but Taylor forced the next three to hit to the infield for easy outs.

Young Harvey Flint looks like a fixture on first base, having eleven put outs and one assist, without a wobble.

Sharp, pitching for the Park Athletics, was almost too sharp for the Bayliffs allowing but two hits in nine innings. Bowersville scored one run in the second when N. Murrell lead off with a double, advancing on an out, and scored when Sharp threw wild at first trying for the third out.

This was all until the tenth when with one gone, N. Murrell singled, D. Murrell singled, the first runner being held at second. The next was a short fly to right, still holding the runner on second, V. Haughey chose to break up the game and sent a long single to left and N. Murrell came home with the bacon.

The Bayliffs will play the Dayton Blues at Bowersville on Memorial Day afternoon and next Sunday they travel to Chillicothe for a contest with the Meade Paper Co. nine. Score:

SPRINGFIELD TEAM WILL MEET RESERVES IN HOLIDAY FRACAS

The Springfield Tramps will be the opponents of the Reserve baseball nine in the annual Memorial Day diamond classic scheduled for Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Washington Park, the local management announces.

Swanson, who has been playing in the outfield, but whose regular position is a pitcher, will be on the mound for the Reserves with Maxton in reserve.

The two-game winning streak of the local team terminated last Sunday when the American Redway Express team of Dayton took a 2 to 1 decision and the Reserves hope to get back on the winning side Thursday.

The Reserve defeat last Sunday may be explained as much as anything by lack of practice as rain kept the team idle for two straight Sundays.

Then too, the teams played under adverse conditions as far as the playing field was concerned and the diamond was slow and somewhat soggy.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875. Adv.

VETERAN RACING TRIO SEEKING BALM FOR DEFEAT BY NOVICE

Indianapolis, Ind., May 28.—When Louis Meyer tears down the straightaway at Indianapolis on Decoration day at the start of the annual 500-mile automobile classic, he'll have three very determined grease-begrimed drivers on his heels—or, rather, his tires.

They are the trio from whom he, an unknown youth, driving in his first important race, wrested the title last year, Leon Duray, Tony Gulotta and Jimmie Gleason.

They were married June 21, 1919. The plaintiff seeks to be awarded custody of their minor children, Helen, 8, Junior, 3, and Mary, aged eighteen months.

Edward Thaxton has filed suit for divorce from Frances Thaxton on grounds of gross neglect of duty. They were married August 6, 1920. One child, Margaret, 6, was born of the union. The plaintiff asks that the defendant be barred of dower interest in real estate owned by him.

ALIMONY SOUGHT
Reasonable alimony for her support is sought by Eva Greenway in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court against Efron Greenway. The plaintiff charges the defendant abandoned her without cause in December, 1927 and has since contributed nothing to her support. The couple was married January 12, 1899 and have three children of full age.

"COMA" GIRL LOSES HUGE DAMAGE SUIT

PAINESVILLE, O., May 28.—A jury of five women and seven men here today decided against Miss Helen Buschmann, the Westfield, Mass., "coma" girl in her suit for $250,000 damages from the Great Lakes Stages Inc.

The verdict means that the jury did not feel that the bus company was responsible for the accident that sent the girl into her long coma.

After the verdict had been read, J. W. Moorhouse, jury foreman, started to speak:

"We have the utmost sympathy for Miss Buschmann."

Judge W. S. Slocum interrupted him and said there was to be no speechmaking.

Miss Buschmann was not in court.

BOOTLEGGERS BEAT POLICE SERGEANT

CINCINNATI, O., May 28.—Three Negro bootleggers, whose operations have been cramped by police, recently attacked Sergeant Jacob Schardt last night, and beat him into unconsciousness.

Schardt was removed to General Hospital where physicians said he was suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, concussion of the brain and severe lacerations.

One of the negroes was captured.

GAME POSTPONED

Wet grounds resulted in postponement of the scheduled American League softball game between the league-leading and undefeated Coates Barber Shop nine and the Rotary Club Monday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field, Tuesday night the Lang Chevrolet Co. and Xenia Central High School "Buccaneers" will meet in a National League encounter.

EAST END NEWS

BIG TEN UPSET

Pete De Paolo, who gave back the shoes which he always carried on his racing car to his baby after he cracked up in the preliminary run last year, is again entered.

As the day for the race draws near and the cars tear around lap after lap, with Leon Duray usually setting the pace, smiling Louis Meyer industriously applies himself to his driving, for the boy who won the first big race, then further proved himself by winning the A. A. championship of 1928, admits he still has a lot to learn about handling a car.

CHICAGO'S RICHEST GIRL New Million-Dollar Heiress Returns To School

By ROY J. GIBBONS
CHICAGO, May 28.—How would you like to be able to write a check for $1,000,000, girls?

Order your hose and gloves by the dozen pairs, get your hats direct from the Rue de la Paix and have a standing order for corsets with the florist.

And that's not the half of it. Miss Rose Marie Baur, 18 years old, can do all these things and then some. As Chicago's richest girl, worth it is estimated, more than $2,500,000, she can write her own ticket for almost anything from a trip to Europe to a husband.

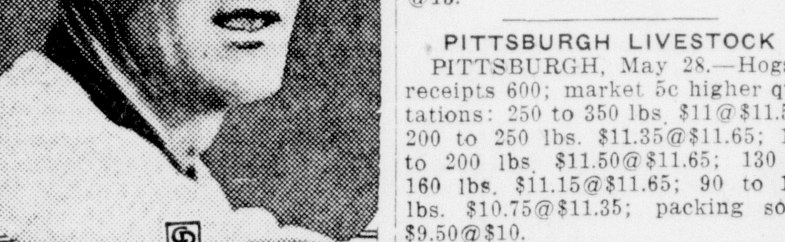

Rose Marie, the daughter of Mrs. Bertha Baur, Republican national committeewoman from Illinois, inherited two-thirds of her father's estate recently on reaching the age of 18. She made the trip from Bryn Mawr college in Pennsylvania, where she is attending school, to assume formal charge of the fortune, left her when her father, Jacob Baur, the liquid carbonic magnate, died intestate nearly seventeen years ago.

A scratch or two of a pen and the money was hers to do with as she pleased.

But Rose Marie didn't seem to think she was in any way different from any other 18-year-old girl. Her mother, who was once a stenographer and later managed the affairs of her husband's business, gave a party in her honor. Not too large a one. And Rose Marie started back for Bryn Mawr.

She can still write the check, or have any of the other things. But she prefer going back to school. Friends declare she says that the money might be lost or it might even vanish. But in learning, Chicago's richest million-dollar heiress appreciates that she has something that can never be taken from her and will always stand by as the staunchest kind of ally.

Congratulations

BILL BARRETT
William J. Barrett, Chicago White Sox outfielder, is just 29 years old today.

Bill was born in Cambridge, Mass., May 28, 1900, and celebrates his birthday and his seventh anniversary as a White Sox at the same time.

BOWERSVILLE WINS OPENING GAME WITH TENTH INNING RALLY

The Bowersville Bayliffs were finally permitted to inaugurate their diamond season Sunday afternoon and celebrated the unexpected event by going ten innings to defeat the Park Athletics, 2 to 1 at Bowersville.

Taylor, making his first appearance in a Bayliff uniform, pitched a nice game. For the first five innings he did not allow a hit and for the next five only one in an inning.

In the seventh he pitched out a nice hole when he walked the first man up. The next singled, the red man was retired on a line drive which N. Murrell took care of. Then he proceeded to strike out the next two.

It looked bad in the ninth when the first man up doubled, but Taylor forced the next three to hit to the infield for easy outs.

Young Harvey Flint looks like a fixture on first base, having eleven put outs and one assist, without a wobble.

Sharp, pitching for the Park Athletics, was almost too sharp for the Bayliffs allowing but two hits in nine innings. Bowersville scored one run in the second when N. Murrell lead off with a double, advancing on an out, and scored when Sharp threw wild at first trying for the third out.

This was all until the tenth when with one gone, N. Murrell singled, D. Murrell singled, the first runner being held at second. The next was a short fly to right, still holding the runner on second, V. Haughey chose to break up the game and sent a long single to left and N. Murrell came home with the bacon.

The Bayliffs will play the Dayton Blues at Bowersville on Memorial Day afternoon and next Sunday they travel to Chillicothe for a contest with the Meade Paper Co. nine. Score:

Springfield team will meet reserves in holiday fracas.

The Springfield Tramps will be the opponents of the Reserve baseball nine in the annual Memorial Day diamond classic scheduled for Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Washington Park, the local management announces.

Swanson, who has been playing in the outfield, but whose regular position is a pitcher, will be on the mound for the Reserves with Maxton in reserve.

The two-game winning streak of the local team terminated last Sunday when the American Railways Express team of Dayton took a 5 to 5 decision and the Reserves hope to get back on the winning side Thursday.

The Reserve defeat last Sunday may be explained as much as anything by lack of practice as rain kept the team idle for two straight Sundays.

Then too, the teams played under adverse conditions as far as the playing field was concerned and the diamond was slow and somewhat soggy.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia. This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE, Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875. Adv.

VETERAN RACING TRIO SEEKING BALM FOR DEFEAT BY NOVICE

By BONITA WITT
Staff Writer for Central Press
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 27.—When Louis Meyer tears down the straightaway at Indianapolis on Decoration day at the start of the annual 500-mile automobile classic, he'll have three very determined grease-begrimed drivers on his heels—or, rather, his tires.

They are the trio from whom he, an unknown youth, driving in his first important race, wrested the title last year, Leon Duray, Tony Gulotta and Jimmie Gleason.

BIG TEN UPSET

Pete De Paolo, who gave back the shoes which he always carried on his racine car to his baby after he cracked up in the preliminary run last year, is again entered.

As the day for the race draws near and the cars tear around lap after lap, with Leon Duray usually setting the pace, smiling Louis Meyer industriously applies himself to his driving, for the boy who won the first big race, then further proved himself by winning the A. A. championship of 1928, admits he still has a lot to learn about handling a car.

CHICAGO'S RICHEST GIRL New Million-Dollar Heiress Returns To School

Rose Marie Baur

By ROY J. GIBBONS
CHICAGO, May 28.—How would you like to be able to write a check for $1,000,000, girls?

Order your hose and gloves by the dozen pairs, get your hats direct from the Rue de la Paix and have a standing order for corsets with the florist.

And that's not the half of it. Miss Rose Marie Baur, 18 years old, can do all these trifles and then some. As Chicago's richest girl, worth, it is estimated, more than $2,500,000, she can write her own ticket for almost anything from a trip to Europe to a husband.

Rose Marie, the daughter of Mrs. Bertha Baur, Republican national committeewoman from Illinois, inherited two-thirds of her father's estate recently on reaching the age of 18. She made the trip from Bryn Mawr college in Pennsylvania, where she is attending school, to assume formal charge of the fortune, left her when her father, Jacob Baur, the liquid carbonic magnate, died intestate nearly seventeen years ago.

A scratch or two of a pen and the money was hers to do with as she pleased.

But Rose Marie didn't seem to think she was in any way different from any other 18-year-old girl. Her mother, who was once a stenographer and later managed the affairs of her husband's business, gave a party in her honor. Not too large a one. And Rose Marie started back for Bryn Mawr.

She can still write the check, or have any of the other things. But she prefer going back to school. Friends declare she says that the money might be lost or it might even vanish. But in learning, Chicago's richest million-dollar heiress appreciates that she has something that can never be taken from her and will always stand by as the staunchest kind of ally.

CONGRATULATIONS

FEWER MARRIAGES
RECORDED IN LAST
YEAR REPORT SHOWS

Nine less marriage licenses were granted by the license bureau of Probate Court in the fiscal year that ended March 31, 1929, than during the preceding twelve months, an annual report prepared by Miss Allegra E. Hawes, deputy probate judge, reveals. The total for last year was 230.

June regained its popularity as a bridal month. There were forty June brides. In the preceding year August was high with twenty-eight licenses, one more than was issued in June during that year. The month of January was least popular both years.

Other statistics in the report disclose that during the last fiscal year, the court issued thirty-two letters of guardianship, probated eighty-seven wills, issued seventy letters testamentary and ninety-five letters of administration, administered 165 estates, sent twelve persons to insane hospitals, twenty-two to feeble-minded and epileptic institutions and two children to reform schools.

In the previous year the court issued thirty-three letters of guardianship, probated fifty-six wills, issued forty-seven letters testamentary and ninety-one letters of administration, administered 138 estates and sent twenty-two persons to insane and epileptic institutions and five children to reform schools.

National
Farm
Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal, for Central Press

The farm world took great interest in the sudden move of the eastern railroads, a couple of weeks ago, in asking permission to cut rates on wheat intended for export.

The 1928 crop of wheat, it may be recalled, was not excessively large. Indeed, a part of it, the soft winter wheat of Ohio and Indiana, was quite short, as a result of severe weather conditions.

But there has been a large production of the grain elsewhere in the world, and exports of wheat and flour have been slow. It was fairly plain that when new 1929 wheat began to come from the threshers there would be a carry-over considerably larger than usual.

That would not be a serious matter if the new crop were of average size or less, but as it happens, the winter wheat this year is in fine condition and promises a large crop.

What, then, would happen when the new crop came piling in on the big carry-over from 1928? The actual physical glut of wheat on the farms, and in elevators and on the railroads would be a serious thing and as for prices—!

It seems reasonable enough to try to meet this by reducing rates on wheat shipments going to seaports on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, hoping that this would stimulate exports, and thus get the old wheat out of the way and off our hands.

Right here I might say that this is just about what is expected to be accomplished by the "export de-benture" plan.

This is a plan for offering a bounty on each unit of wheat and other surplus products sold abroad so that exporters can reduce the selling price somewhat, and so increase their sales.

A cut in freight rates aims at doing the same thing, on the theory that it makes wheat at the shipside a few cents cheaper, and enables the exporter to undersell other foreign producers of wheat, and so move the surplus quickly.

Whether it will work that way is not so certain.

The first result of the announcement was a howl from several quarters. The flour mills protest.

ed because flour for export did not get a corresponding cut in rates, thereby damaging the mill's export business.

Steamer and barge lines claimed that this cheaper competition by the railroads would take away their business or at least damage it.

But the biggest uncertainty is whether the rate cut will actually move the wheat.

If Canada and other foreign countries with wheat to sell should stand by and do nothing, the plan would probably succeed. But if these countries cut their own prices, or the steamer rates, to restore the equality of prices, it is hard to see how wheat growers here will be better off.

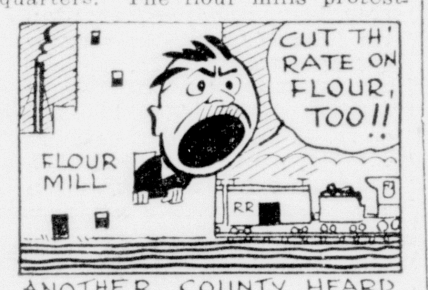

In that case all that would be accomplished would be a slight lowering of the general level of world wheat prices, a loss of profits by the railroads, and very little or no improvement in our export sales.

However, it is a little too soon to condemn the plan. Perhaps the interstate commerce commission will not let it be tried at all. We shall see.

Let's see what they'll do about it.

FEWER MARRIAGES
RECORDED IN LAST
YEAR REPORT SHOWS

Nine less marriage licenses were granted by the license bureau of Probate Court in the fiscal year that ended March 31, 1929, than during the preceding twelve months, an annual report prepared by Miss Allegra E. Hawes, deputy probate judge, reveals. The total for last year was 230.

June regained its popularity as a bridal month. There were forty June brides. In the preceding year August was high with twenty-eight licenses, one more than was issued in June during that year. The month of January was least popular both years.

Other statistics in the report disclose that during the last fiscal year, the court issued thirty-two letters of guardianship, probated eighty-seven wills, issued seventy letters testamentary and ninety-five letters of administration, administered 145 estates, sent twelve persons to insane hospitals, twenty-two to feeble-minded and epileptic institutions and two children to reform schools.

In the previous year the court issued thirty-three letters of guardianship, probated fifty-six wills, issued forty-seven letters testamentary and ninety-one letters of administration, administered 138 estates and sent twenty-two persons to insane and epileptic institutions and five children to reform schools.

National
Farm
Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal, for Central Press

The farm world took great interest in the sudden move of the eastern railroads, a couple of weeks ago, in asking permission to cut rates on wheat intended for export.

The 1928 crop of wheat, it may be recalled, was not excessively large. Indeed, a part of it, the soft winter wheat of Ohio and Indiana, was quite short, as a result of severe weather conditions.

But there has been a large production of the grain elsewhere in the world, and exports of wheat and flour have been slow. It was fairly plain that when new 1929 wheat began to come from the threshers there would be a carry-over considerably larger than usual.

That would not be a serious matter if the new crop were of average size or less, but as it happens, the winter wheat this year is in fine condition and promises a large crop.

What, then, would happen when the new crop came piling in on the big carry-over from 1928? The actual physical glut of wheat on the farms, and in elevators and on the railroads would be a serious thing, and as for prices—

It seems reasonable enough to try to meet this by reducing rates on wheat shipments going to seaports on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, hoping that this would stimulate exports, and thus get the old wheat out of the way and off our hands.

Right here I might say that this is just about what is expected to be accomplished by the "export de-benture" plan.

This is a plan for offering a bounty on each unit of wheat and other surplus products sold abroad so that exporters can reduce the selling price somewhat, and so increase their sales.

A cut in freight rates aims at doing the same thing, on the theory that it makes wheat at the shipside a few cents cheaper, and enables the exporter to undersell other foreign producers of wheat, and so move the surplus quickly.

Whether it will work that way is not so certain.

The first result of the announcement was a howl from several quarters. The flour mills protested because flour for export did not get a corresponding cut in rates, thereby damaging the mill's export business.

Steamer and barge lines claimed that this cheaper competition by the railroads would take away their business or at least damage it.

But the biggest uncertainty is whether the rate cut will actually move the wheat.

If Canada and other foreign countries with wheat to sell should stand by and do nothing, the plan would probably succeed. But if these countries cut their own prices, or the steamer rates, to restore the equality of prices, it is hard to see how wheat growers here will be better off.

In that case all that would be accomplished would be a slight lowering of the general level of world wheat prices, a loss of profits by the railroads, and very little or no improvement in our export sales.

However, it is a little too soon to condemn the plan. Perhaps the interstate commerce commission will not let it be tried at all. We shall see.

You wouldn't use a "pot-and-pan" cleanser—that's sure. You would make careful tests—for thoroughness, sanitation, speed, and particularly for their effect on fine surfaces. That's exactly what the great hotels, office buildings and hospitals have done. They chose Wyandot—they've used nothing else for years. Millions saved!

PROPER DISPLAY OF FLAGS BEING URGED BY LEGION MEMBERS

Suggestions on correct methods for displaying flags on Memorial Day are being made by the Americanization Committee of Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion, with a request that the directions be followed by Xenians.

Flags flown at half staff until 12 o'clock noon Thursday should be one width of the flag from the top of the pole.

It is suggested that the blue field of flags displayed in front of residences and other buildings should be in the upper left-hand corner as viewed by the observer.

The Legion is asking motorists not to drape flags over their autos but to use bunting instead. Aside from the danger of the flag catching on fire if draped over the hood, this is considered an improper method of display. Placing flags over the rear of the car is a practice also being discouraged.

The final request made by Legionnaires is that all flags be taken down by sundown.

DAMAGE SUIT WILL BEGIN WEDNESDAY

The $250 damage suit filed in Common Pleas Court by H. H. Andrus against The Pennsylvania Railroad Co., based on the charge that a sedan driven by his wife, a Beaver Creek Twp. High School teacher, was demolished by a westbound passenger train after it had stalled on a private crossing, 1,000 feet east of the Trebels crossing, Dayton-Xenia Pike, December 15, 1927, is assigned for a jury trial Wednesday morning.

Andrus seeks to recover $250, value of the car, and an additional $30 at the rate of $1 a day for being deprived of the use of an auto for thirty days, the time taken to obtain another machine.

Judge P. R. Emery, Madison County, will preside on the local bench at the trial in the absence of Judge R. L. Gowdy who is in Cleveland, having been assigned to the Cuyahoga County bench for four weeks.

Miller and Finney are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Scarface Al Capone Tells Of Hazards To Young Fellow Entering Racket

Al Capone and (inset) Director Lemuel B. Schofield

By MADELIN LEOP

Central Press Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—The life of a gangster even that of a notorious monarch of the underworld, is as harrowing and full of pitfalls as it is pictured in our popular scenarios of the screen. There is no peace, no rest for the wicked, as the old adage says, and Al (Scarface) Capone proves the uncertainty of his life by his statement in prison that now at last he feels peaceful and restful after four and one-half years of gang life, which have been nothing but turmoil every minute.

For Al Capone, as is popularly known, was taken by two detectives in a Philadelphia movie theater, rushed to headquarters because he was found carrying a gun, convicted for a year, taken to Moyamensing Prison in the city for a night, and then heavily guarded, transported for a year to the Holmesburg county prison.

Here no one is allowed to see him, by orders of Thomas Heston, superintendent. But Public Safety Director Lemuel B. Schofield of Philadelphia tells of a heart-to-heart talk Capone had with him.

How Capone Feels

"I haven't had peace of mind in years," Capone said. "I got into the Chicago gang racket four and a half years ago. I am now retired and living on my earnings. I would like to get out of the racket but I cannot.

"Once in the racket you're all ways there, it seems. The parasites trail you, begging you favors and for money, and you never can get away from them, no matter where you go. I have a wife and an 11-year-old boy, whom I idolize and a beautiful home at Palm Island, Fla. If I could go there and for-

Years of service in MODEL T FORDS

THE Model T was so strongly and sturdily built that it is still rendering reliable, economical service to motorists in every section of the country. Millions of these cars can be put in shape for two, three and five more years of use at very small cost.

So that you may have this work done economically and satisfactorily, the Ford Motor Company is still devoting a considerable section of its plants to the manufacture of Model T parts. It will continue to do so as long as they are needed by Model T owners. The following list gives the approximate labor charges for reconditioning the Model T Ford:—

Engine
Tune motor (including replacement of commutator case, brush and vibrator points if necessary)	$1.00
Grind valves and clean carbon	$3.75 to 4.00
Overhaul carburetor	1.50
Reline detachable car transmission bands	1.50
Install new pistons or connecting rods	6.00
Tighten all main bearings	6.00
Overhaul motor and transmission	$20.00 to 25.00
Rear System
Replace rear axle assembly	2.50
Install universal joint	3.00
Reline brake shoes	1.50
Replace rear axle shaft, drive shaft pinion, or drive gear	5.00
Overhaul complete rear axle assembly	$5.75 to 7.00
Rebush spring and perches	1.75
Oil and graphite springs	3.00
Front System
Overhaul front axle	$4.00 to 5.00
Rebush spindle bodies and arms (both sides)	2.50
Replace or straighten spindle connecting rod	.75
Tighten radius rod or steering ball cap	.60
Tighten all sockets and joints of front end	1.50
Replace front spring tie bolt or new leaf	2.50
Straighten front axle	3.00
Chassis
Replace rear fender	1.75
Overhaul steering gear	3.50
Repair muffler	1.00
Overhaul radiator	7.50
Repaint Coupe	25.00
Repaint Sedan	25.00
Repaint Touring Car	20.00
Reupholster Runabout	8.00
Reupholster Touring Car	15.00
Replace top deck (Coupe or Sedan)	4.00
Overhaul starting motor	3.00
Overhaul generator	2.60

These prices are approximate and are for labor only, because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The charge for these parts is low, however, because of the established Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

get it all, I would be the happiest man in the world."

As it is—or was—every closed automobile, every sudden noise, may mean danger. It is a life composed entirely of hiding and leading a covered-over existence.

But Getting Out—! "It is easy to get into the racket," Capone said, "but just as easy as it is to enter, it is difficult to get out of. I want peace and I am willing to live and let live. I'm tired of gang murders and gang shootings."

Capone said that he was at the President Hotel in Atlantic City before he was captured with the purpose of making peace among the gangsters of Chicago, who were there meeting for this gang peace conference. He said that he had the word of each of the big gang leaders that there would be no more gang shootings. He considered that a truce had been made.

"Bugs" Moran, the leader of the North Side gang," Capone continued, "seven of whose men were killed on St. Valentine's day, and other leaders, were there. We talked over things for three days and then agreed to sign on the dotted line and make peace for the general good of all concerned."

PROPER DISPLAY OF FLAGS BEING URGED BY LEGION MEMBERS

Suggestions on correct methods for displaying flags on Memorial Day are being made by the Americanization Committee of Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion, with a request that the directions be followed by Xenians.

Flags flown at half staff until 12 o'clock noon Thursday should be one width of the flag from the top of the pole.

It is suggested that the blue field of flags displayed in front of residences and other buildings should be in the upper left-hand corner as viewed by the observer.

The Legion is asking motorists not to drape flags over their autos but to use bunting instead. Aside from the danger of the flag catching on fire if draped over the hood, this is considered an improper method of display. Placing flags over the rear of the car is a practice also being discouraged.

The final request made by Legionnaires is that all flags be taken down by sundown.

DAMAGE SUIT WILL BEGIN WEDNESDAY

The $280 damage suit filed in Common Pleas Court by H. H. Andrus against The Pennsylvania Railroad Co., based on the charge that a sedan driven by his wife, a Beaver Creek Twp. High School teacher, was demolished by a westbound passenger train after it had stalled on a private crossing, 1,000 feet east of the Trebets crossing, Dayton-Xenia Pike, December 15, 1927, is assigned for a jury trial Wednesday morning. Andrus seeks to recover $250, value of the car, and an additional $30 at the rate of $1 a day for being deprived of the use of an auto for thirty days, the time taken to obtain another machine.

Judge P. R. Emery, Madison County, will preside on the local bench at the trial in the absence of Judge R. L. Gowdy who is in Cleveland, having been assigned to the Cuyahoga County bench for four weeks.

Miller and Finney are attorneys for the plaintiff.

PITY THE GANGSTER!

Scarface Al Capone Tells Of Hazards To Young Fellow Entering Racket

Al Capone and (inset) Director Lemuel B. Schofield

By MADELIN LEOP
Central Press Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—The life of a gangster even that of a notorious monarch of the underworld, is as harrowing and full of pitfalls as it is pictured in our popular scenarios of the screen.

There is no peace, no rest for the wicked, as the old adage says, and

Al (Scarface) Capone proves the uncertainty of his life by his statement in prison that now at last he feels peaceful and restful after four and one-half years of gang life, which have been nothing but turmoil every minute.

For Al Capone, as is popularly known, was taken by two detectives in a Philadelphia movie theater, rushed to headquarters because he was found carrying a gun, convicted for a year, taken to Moyamensing Prison in the city for a night, and then, heavily guarded, transported for a year to the Holmesburg county prison.

Here no one is allowed to see him, by orders of Thomas Heston, superintendent. But Public Safety

Director Lemuel B. Schofield

of Philadelphia tells of a heart-to-heart talk Capone had with him.

How Capone Feels

"I haven't had peace of mind in years," Capone said. "I got into the Chicago gang racket four and a half years ago. I am now retired and living on my earnings. I would like to get out of the racket

but I cannot.

"Once in the racket you're always there, it seems. The parasites trail you, begging you favors and for money, and you never can get away from them, no matter where you go. I have a wife and an 11-year-old boy, whom I idolize and

Years of service in MODEL T FORDS

THE Model T was so strongly and sturdily built that it is still rendering reliable, economical service to motorists in every section of the country. Millions of these cars can be put in shape for two, three and five more years of use at very small cost.

So that you may have this work done economically and satisfactorily, the Ford Motor Company is still devoting a considerable section of its plants to the manufacture of Model T parts. It will continue to do so as long as they are needed by Model T owners. The following list gives the approximate labor charges for reconditioning the Model T Ford:

Engine
Tune motor (including replacement of commutator case, brush and vibrator points if necessary)	$1.00
Grind valves and clean carbon	$3.75 to 4.00
Overhaul carburetor	1.50
Reline detachable car transmission bands	1.50
Install new pistons or connecting rods	6.00
Tighten all main bearings	6.00
Overhaul motor and transmission	$20.00 to 25.00
Rear System
Replace rear axle assembly	2.50
Install universal joint	3.00
Reline brake shoes	1.50
Replace rear axle shaft, drive shaft pinion, or drive gear	5.00
Overhaul complete rear axle assembly	$5.75 to 7.00
Relush spring and perches	1.75
Oil and graphite springs	3.00
Front System
Overhaul front axle	$4.00 to 5.00
Relush spindle bodies and arms (both sides)	2.50
Replace or straighten spindle connecting rod	.75
Tighten radius rod or steering ball cap	.60
Tighten all sockets and joints of front end	1.50
Replace front spring tie bolt or new leaf	2.50
Straighten front axle	3.00
Chassis
Replace rear fender	1.75
Overhaul steering gear	3.50
Repair muffler	1.00
Overhaul radiator	7.50
Repaint Coupe	25.00
Repaint Sedan	25.00
Repaint Touring Car	20.00
Reupholster Runabout	8.00
Reupholster Touring Car	15.00
Replace top deck (Coupe or Sedan)	4.00
Overhaul starting motor	3.00
Overhaul generator	2.60

These prices are approximate and are for labor only, because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The charge for these parts is low, however, because of the established Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.

get it all, I would be the happiest man in the world."

As it is—or was—every closed automobile, every sudden noise, may mean danger. It is a life composed entirely of hiding and leading a covered-over existence.

But Getting Out—

"It is easy to get into the racket," Capone said, "but just as easy as it is to enter, it is difficult to get out of. I want peace and I am willing to live and let live. I'm tired of gang murders and gang shootings."

Capone said that he was at the President Hotel in Atlantic City before he was captured with the purpose of making peace among the gangsters of Chicago, who were there meeting for this gang peace conference. He said that he had the word of each of the big gang leaders that there would be no more gang shootings. He considered that a truce had been made.

"Bugs' Moran, the leader of the North Side gang," Capone continued, "seven of whose men were killed on St. Valentine's day, and other leaders, were there. We talked over things for three days and then agreed to sign on the dotted line and make peace for the general good of all concerned."

ried by Dr. Brown of New York, whose daughter was a classmate of Miss Morrow.

Then forty-five minutes elapsed before Ambassador Morrow and his secretary, A. H. Springer, drove out of the grounds.

"Thank you very much," he said. "I am sorry to have caused you so much trouble. I am going to Washington tonight on the midnight train. I am sure Mr. Springer will tell you everything you want to know."

Morrow drove away and Springer took several typewritten slips from his pocket and handed them to the reporters. The slips read:

"Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow announced the marriage of their daughter, Anne, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at Englewood, N. J., May 27, 1929."

That was all the outside world learned about the wedding except meager details given out by servants and a few of the guests. Those reports took Lindbergh out of the bashful boy love role and made him a calm, self-confident bridegroom. He had, so the reports said, gone into the garden shortly before the ceremony to pick the blue larkspur and columbine bouquet which Miss Morrow carried when she came forward on her father's arm.

There was no fumbling for the ring. Lindbergh produced it from the vest pocket of his blue business suit with almost the same precision as he flies airplanes. Both responded to the ceremony in clear, audible voices, and received congratulations without so much as a blush. The "obey" was eliminated from the ceremony but Dr. Brown customarily leaves out that word unless requested to use it. The abbreviated ceremony was said to have been used at the request of Lindbergh.

Guests consisted chiefly of members of the Morrow and Lindbergh families. Besides Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow and Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of the flier, those present were: Constance and Elizabeth Morrow, sisters of the bride; General J. J. Morrow, brother of the ambassador; Miss Alice Morrow, the ambassador's sister who arrived recently from Constantinople; Mrs. Arthur Yates, a sister of Mrs. Morrow; Miss Amy Aldrich, friend of the Morrrows; and Hulst.

The bride's gown was of white chiffon and she wore a short net veil, carrying the flowers which Lindbergh had picked. Shortly after the ceremony Miss Morrow went upstairs and changed to a dark blue traveling dress and a turban hat of felt and straw.

Each of the guests carried away a piece of the huge wedding cake. The mystery of how Lindbergh obtained a license without revealing it, was learned today. It was issued several days ago by John A. Manson of the Englewood board of health, who apparently was pledged to secrecy.

Efforts to obtain information about the wedding from Dr. Brown failed.

"It was just a simple, lovely, natural little service," he said. "I don't know what Miss Morrow wore. I was looking at her face. But her dress was charming."

"Did Mrs. Lindbergh cry?"

"How silly," Dr. Brown said. "Gentle folk do not behave that way."

The romance of the twenty-seven-year-old youth and the bride of twenty-two, which started in Mexico City in December, 1927, resulted in their marriage almost on the second anniversary of Lindbergh's flight from New York to Paris. That anniversary was celebrated a week ago yesterday.

As a result of the fame that came to him because of his solo trip across the Atlantic, Lindbergh was persuaded to make good-will flights to Central America and Mexico. In Mexico City, Lindbergh was feted by Ambassador Morrow and Plutarco Elias Calles, then president of Mexico.

Reports were published and denied that Lindbergh was engaged to Elizabeth Morrow. Early this year Morrow called newspapermen to the embassy at Mexico City and formally announced the engagement of Anne to Lindbergh.

One of the rumors suggested the Lindberghs were aboard the S. R. Guggenheim yacht Trillora. To strengthen this theory, residents of the vicinity of Sea Cliff, L. I., said an amphibian plane, masterfully handled, glided into Hempstead Harbor last evening. They believed its pilot was Lindbergh; and they pointed out that the landings were in an inlet into the five Guggenheim estates. The Trillora was out of sight today, and the residents said this surely meant the Lindberghs had sailed away on a honeymoon cruise.

CRITICISM OF YOUTH SCORED BY SPEAKER FOR COMMENCEMENT

boys for the positions higher up," Mr. Beck said. "But still more fundamental is the duty to make valuable citizens of the boys so that whatever they take up in later life, they will be able to treat intelligently and usefully."

Returning to the alleged problem of modern youth, the speaker declared: "Modern youth. I'm not afraid of modern youth. Are you?"

"The tragedies of these parents who are trying to force their boys into jobs that God never intended them to look at through opera glasses."

Again taking the older generation to task for its criticisms, Mr. Beck told the audience that "I'd like to become an oculist so I could change the spectacles on these adults in order to give them a different outlook on our modern youth of today."

The speaker gave the graduates four thoughts to keep in mind as stepping stones to success, namely, the fact they must have a plan in life, that they need a purpose, they need perseverance and rightness.

Tuesday morning Beck spoke at Steele High School in Dayton and at noon he was the guest of honor at the Dayton Kiwanis Club luncheon at Patterson school. Following that he was present at the patriotic service arranged in his honor.

He will be the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Principals and Supervisors Association at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Miami Hotel in Dayton.

The commencement exercises opened with a prelude by the high school orchestra under the direction of E. G. Whitworth and the procession for the class of 1929 played by Miss Theda Downing.

The Rev. S. L. Brill gave the invocation and this was followed by another orchestra selection, Mosie Overture, Seredy.

Louis Hammerle, school superintendent, introduced the speaker of the evening with the announcement to the graduates not to expect tips on the stock market but tips on how to invest their future wisely.

Following the address by Cameron Beck, the orchestra played another number, Melodie in F by A. Rubinstein.

Principal F. R. Woodruff presented the graduating class and the diplomas to the sixty graduates were distributed by J. J. Stout, vice-president of the school board.

One of the closing features of the ceremony was the presentation of the Premier Rose to Miss Margaret Neeld and Robert Adair, the two seniors elected members of the Premier Roll, an honorary organization established in 1922. The Premier Rose is the badge of the society. Superintendent Hammerle made the presentation.

The exercises closed with the benediction pronounced by the Rev. J. P. Lytle and the recessional played by Miss Downing.

The senior girls wore white sport dresses with corresponding footwear while the senior boys were attired in ensemble costumes of gray striped trousers, Oxford-gray coats, gray spats and wing collars with bow-ties.

Following is the class roster:

Robert Goulding Adair, Pearl Lucille Anderson, Paul Bales, James R. Beck, LaMar Bennett, Ruby Neumann Bice, George M. Bickling, Pauline Elizabeth Botorff, Helen Virginia Brenner, Carolyn Isabelle Brill.

habit of making yourself damnably plain."

"Unfortunately, it is necessary to be damnably plain," came Brill's acid response.

In the silence that followed the two little lights abruptly ceased to glow, and at first Charlie assumed that the two men ahead of him had reached the bottom of the steps and were now on level ground that did not need illumination. In one assumption he was right; soon he, too, came to the end of the steps. But in the other he was wrong. The lights had ceased to glow because the passage took a sharp turn, and an angle of the wall hid them from view.

"Lord—I mustn't lose them!" thought Charlie, hurrying around the turn.

Not until he had turned twice more did he come upon the lights again. The passage was full of twists and corners. As the lights came into view, one of them wavered and stopped.

"What's the matter?" demanded Brill.

"I thought I heard something," muttered the professor.

"Well—doesn't one hear things down here?" said Brill, ironically. "Listen!"

Thud—boom! The ground beneath them shook for an instant. Charlie had never heard the booming so loud before. Its increased volume was eloquent of the depth he had descended. He was now nearer the level from which the sound came.

"Sea's rough today, eh?" exclaimed Brill, with a sudden laugh. "Just as well, too, perhaps. It'll be rougher still before midnight!"

"Oh, be quiet, can't you?" snapped the professor, nervously, as he began to walk on again.

"Why? There's no one to hear us! And I'm in a talkative humor, Cunningham—like a general on the eve of knocking out an army of fools—"

"And I'm one of the fools!" interposed the professor.

"Yes—in all senses but one. If I'd had your brain, Cunningham, I'd have used it to dominate people, not to be dominated by them. But, at any rate, you have a brain in the midst of your folly, which is more than some of the fools have. The fools, for instance, who imagine that these sounds going on below our feet—listen to 'em—are the echoes of that old mine disaster. Well, it's been a useful old mine disaster to us, hasn't it—in more than one way. It's given us—all this—and it's provided a pleasant little raison d'etre for certain happenings, eh? The mine disaster and the sea. The echo of the mine disaster."

He was within a couple of yards of Charlie when he passed him. Charlie held on to himself tightly, fearing that if he did not he would burst with a loud report. But when the immediate danger was over, he scrambled up with surprising softness and rapidity, and continued the descent with new two lights ahead of him instead of one.

But for the thought of Celia's peril, he might have turned and tried to regain the blessed air above. Celia, however, was his torch, and she drew him forward as millions of other ideals of the flesh or of the spirit have drawn forward the trembling humanity that has worshipped them. Charlie, like Brown, was designed for comfort; but, also like Brown, he bore with him the disconcerted essence of St. George.

The two lights grew closer. Brill was catching the professor up. Soon the lights almost mingled, and a low conversation began.

"Well, what was it?" asked the professor.

"I don't know," answered Simon Brill. "There wasn't time to find out."

"I suppose that means you didn't relish the job of finding out," suggested the professor, spitefully.

"It doesn't mean anything of the sort!" retorted Brill. "It means I'm not a fool! That door was open, wasn't it? Suppose, while I was searching around, somebody had slipped down?"

Charlie's heart missed a beat. But Brill evidently did not realize the significance of his suggestion, for he ran on:

"It may have been a small boy throwing a stone at the window. Empty houses are sometimes attractive to ambitious urchins. All the same, Cunningham, I'm not going to act on that presumption. I'm going to act on the presumption that trouble of some sort might be brewing up there and that it is important for us to see there's no trouble down here? You understand me, eh?"

"Oh, yes, I understand you," muttered the professor. "You've got a

Meat Cleaver Murder

Married but a few weeks, George Schneider, 55, Walla Walla, Wash., brewer, faces first degree murder charges since the death of his wife from meat cleaver wounds which police say he inflicted. He explained to police that he became enraged when she insisted upon going out without him one evening, because he thought she was to meet an old sweetheart. He attempted to asphyxiate himself but was prevented by the arrival of the police.

The Theater

Some people wouldn't be surprised if Charley Chaplin should soon join forces with James Cruze in an independent motion picture organization.

Cruze, who lost once in a similar venture because of lack of proper organization, again has his own flicker outfit and is preparing to make "The Great Garbo" with Erich Von Stroheim in the leading role.

When Von Stroheim read the part he said: "That's Von Stroheim." In the meantime the star's portunity to show its interest in Some people have thought that all of the first season's productions should have been open to the public, thus helping to popularize the production. Since this plan was not followed, it appears wise to throw the doors open on the last number.

It is significant that similar little theater organizations in other cities, give all their productions for the public. The well-filled house is much more of a stimulus to the amateur actors and actresses than playing to empty chairs. Furthermore it would help the Guild sufficiently financially, so that it might eventually be able to afford its own workshop.

CHARLEY CHAPLIN

$750,000 "Queen Kelly", featuring our old friend Gloria Swanson, is on the Pathe shelf.

Chaplin was offered the part Von Stroheim accepted in "The Great Garbo" and was enthusiastic, but turned it down. His own picture "City Lights", will be all silent, and will not be released until after Cruze's drama. Since it will approximate an expenditure of $500,000, a talky by Chaplin issued before that might jeopardize the comedy.

Chaplin has been heard to say that he is not interested in the prospective merger of United Artists with Warner Bros., and that when it takes place, he will consider himself a "free agent." That makes him a likely possibility to join up with Cruze.

Cruze, in his way, is a lone wolf. He works best when he isn't interfered with. He has selected a happy time to launch his new company. With the other organizations immersed in mergers, Cruze is concentrating on actual production. It is generally admitted that the only studio with an outstanding program of sterling pictures is M. G. M., as witness "Broadway Melody", "The Trial of Mary Dugan", "Madame X", etc. Quality, not quantity, is the motto.

An announcement of the Xenia Little Theater Guild reveals that the forthcoming mystery drama, "In the Next Room," last of the Guild plays of this season, will be open to the public.

The public is thus given an opportunity to give it the moral support it needs at this trying time.
